Dear Mr Brown

Funds provided to University of East Anglia

Thank you for your email of 26 November regarding the above. Following internal consultations we are able to reply to your enquiry as follows.

In Northern Anglian Area, we were involved in a project with UEA, which ran from 2003 until 2005 called Water4All. The project was funded by INTERREG IIIB North Sea Region Programme. Its aim was to understand the effectiveness of land use measures in reducing nitrate levels in a catchment area. The River Slea in Lincolnshire was used for the pilot. The science project reference number is SC030126 so if this can be searched for maybe more information can be found. The contact at UEA for this project was Dr Kevin Hiscock, School of Environmental Sciences.

The follow up to Water4All was WaterCost (ran 2006-2007), which was funded by INTERREG IIIB North West Europe Programme. The project aimed to assist in providing WFD competent authorities with cost-effective and sustainable measures for the management of groundwater quality.

In the financial year 2006/2007 we worked with Andrew Lovatt from the Environmental Sciences Department on a Future of the Fens stakeholder event. Our contribution was £6,000.

We also worked with the UEA on another European project called ComCoast I have attached the breakdown of contributions on an excel spreadsheet. Further information of this project can be found on the following weblink - <http://www.comcoast.org/>
