Dear Mr Ovens,

Re: Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 – Request for Information

Thank you for your email which was received by the University on 2 December 2009 timed 18:12 hours, and your subsequent clarification received 4 December 2009 timed 08:24 hours. The following information has been requested:

I would like information please on the amount of people at Glasgow University who have had common purpose training in the last 10 years? This includes pupils and staff.

Can you tell me also the total cost for this training, and where the money came from to fund it?

University's Response

No payments have been made by the University of Glasgow to a supplier named 'Common Purpose Training' in the last 10 years. Accordingly, the University of Glasgow does not hold the information that you have requested and is not aware of any other public authority that could respond to your request. Section 17 of FOISA states that where public authorities receive requests for information that they do not hold, they must issue a notice advising that they do not hold the requested information.

The supply of documents under the terms of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 does not give the applicant or whoever receives the information any right to re-use it in such a way that might infringe the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 (for example, by making multiple copies, publishing or otherwise distributing the information to other individuals and the public). The Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 (Consequential Modifications) Order 2004 ensured that Section 50 of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 ("CDPA") applies to the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 ("FOISA").

Breach of copyright law is an actionable offence and the University expressly reserves its rights and remedies available to it pursuant to the CDPA and common law. Further information on copyright is available at the following website:
