Dear Mr Walker,

Freedom of Information Request - RFI20081370

Thank you for your request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 ("the Act") received on 29 November 2008 seeking the following information:

'Please supply the names, ranks/grades and job titles of those BBC employees who are graduates of the the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.'

The BBC has not previously monitored information relating to the educational background of our staff. However, we have recently begun to collect this information for successful job applicants (employed on permanent or fixed-term contracts). Over the past 2 years over seven thousand individuals have successfully applied for a job through BBC HR Direct Recruitment. Of this number, none indicated they had graduated from the above institution.

For staff who joined prior to 2007, this information would only be available from individuals' application forms held by BBC HR Direct Recruitment, which are kept for three years from the date of application and then destroyed. It is likely, therefore, that the educational details for many staff currently employed would no longer be held. In the case of individuals for whom the information you requested is still held, we anticipate that it would take BBC staff more than two and a half days to retrieve the information from individuals' application forms. Under section 12 of the Act, we are allowed to refuse to handle the request if it would exceed the appropriate limit. The appropriate limit has been set by the Regulations (SI 2004/3244) as being £450 (equivalent to two and a half days work, at an hourly rate of £25).

However, our central records do show that a small number of BBC staff have attended the above institution for the completion of shorter management courses.

I hope this response satisfies your request.
