short educational bulletin that summarises public guidance on paying workers and common reasons for underpayment – helping to ensure that workers are not short-changed in future.

The companies the Government is naming today were served a notice of underpayment between September 2016 and July 2018, following investigations by HMRC.

Last month, the Government announced a measured increase in National Living Wage and National Minimum Wage rates, which will come into effect from April 2021. Every worker is entitled to the National Minimum Wage, no matter their age or profession.

The full list of companies named for failing to pay the National Minimum Wage can be seen below: