Donated by you.

Our Annual Fund

At the end of the fifth year of fundraising, Kingston University's Annual Fund has almost reached the half a million pound mark, with the last academic year alone raising over £116,000.

All this is made possible by you, our alumni. Your donations make huge differences to the lives of our students, who in turn go out into the world, representing and enhancing the reputation of our amazing University.

A big thank you to you all!

Rick Willemse

BSc Geology 2012 and recipient of a Whitten Fund grant

Donations to the Whitten Fund support geoscience students with the often-considerable costs of final-year mandatory fieldwork. BSc Geology student Rick Willemse used his award to part-fund a trip to Iceland to investigate the effects of volcanic ash on the degradation of airframe materials. Rick said: "With my degree coming towards its conclusion and my bank account edging nervously towards the red, the award allowed me to breathe more easily and end my studies with a flourish. The trip to Iceland was invaluable, and collecting samples from volcanic rock was both thrilling and so important to the practical aspects of my dissertation. And I had the extra thrill of meeting a man who was actually called Thor, halfway up a glacier."

Francesca Jones

Former Postgraduate Scholarship Winner
MA Publishing and Creative Writing 2011

Since completing her studies, Francesca has undertaken vital internships that have quickly led to her first full-time position as an editorial assistant within the City & Guilds' publishing department. Already exceeding expectations and winning the organisation's Big Roar award, she would like to pass on her heartfelt thanks to the alumni of Kingston University who helped her to fully focus on her studies. "Donations to the Annual Fund made it possible for me to really throw myself into my studies and to excel," Francesca said. "Without the huge financial burden of paying all of my fees, I also found the time to edit one of the University's creative writing publications, which was crucial in helping me into my current position. This is why I am so tremendously thankful to Kingston alumni and the extraordinary help that they have given me."

Who's Donating?

Jessica Horscroft

English MPhil 1999

Jessica studied for both a BA and an MPhil in English Literature at Kingston and was proud to give something back to the University through the Annual Fund. Talking about her time at Kingston and what caused her to donate, Jessica said: "I suddenly went blind at the age of 29 and really needed something to give me my self-confidence back. Kingston did exactly that, giving me a real feeling of self-worth. It even gave me the confidence to take up singing again – something that I had done professionally before I lost my sight. I donate because I love the thought that other people, young or old, could be empowered by the kind of experiences and opportunities that my time at Kingston gave me."

John Henshall

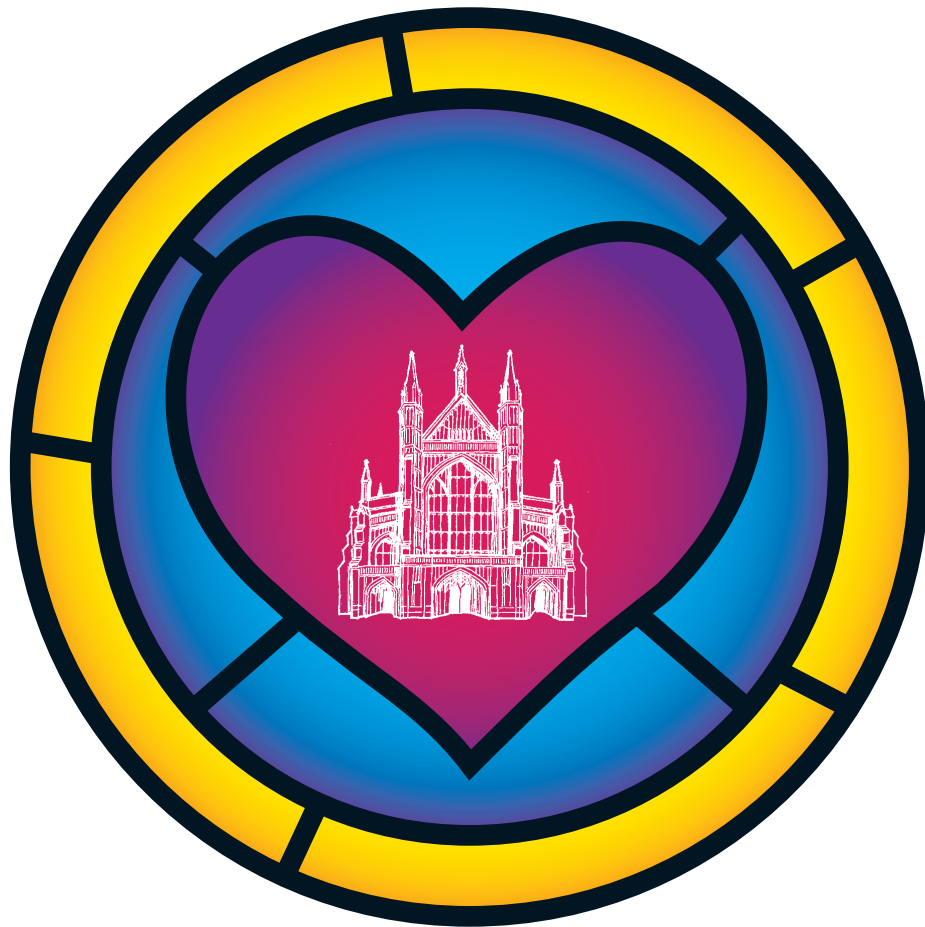

Postgraduate scholar 2012

John Henshall couldn't believe he'd won a postgraduate scholarship when the call came through. "I was at home with my dad, preparing for the move to uni and I almost missed the call," he said. "When I heard I'd won it, I couldn't believe it – I ran into the kitchen screaming! It feels amazing." John, who is studying geographical information systems (GIS), explained that he had been so worried about financing his studies, he almost didn't take up his place. The scholarship means he will now be able to focus completely on his course, and take part in valuable extra-curricular activities such as the field trip to Malta. "I'd like to say thank you to the donors – your generosity means so much to me."

John is keen to use the expert knowledge he gains at Kingston to develop the relatively young discipline of GIS further. His experiences of teaching English in Taiwan after graduating from his first degree have also had a lasting effect on him. "I'd like to be involved in educating children about GIS – everyone uses it in things like Google maps, but people don't know about the science behind it," he said.

Elizabeth Batty

Postgraduate scholar 2012

Liz Batty, who is studying a masters in Historic Building Conservation, knows more than most how valuable a scholarship is. "I started the masters last year and had to stop because I couldn't continue to fund it, so it's a big relief to know that I had that weight off my mind," Liz said. "It means I can actually do the course. Otherwise I simply wouldn't be able to do it," she explained.

Liz is combining her part-time studies with working for the Church of England, looking after churches in the Winchester diocese, and hopes that, together with her masters, the first part of her RICS accreditation, she can then go on to do the second part of the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors Assessment of Professional Competence and become a chartered surveyor. "I'd like to further my career and publish within the field," Liz said. "I've got my heart set on working on Winchester Cathedral, or any significant historical building would be good! I want to become a specialist in the field, so I need more specialist knowledge than my undergraduate degree to do that."

The generosity of the donors has inspired Liz to donate in the future. "I think it's a really nice thing that, if someone has succeeded, they give something back to people at the beginning of their career, and you hope that you can end up doing the same thing, especially if you have personally benefitted from someone else donating money. You really think, if I do make it, it's thanks to them," she said.

Joanna Suchy

Postgraduate scholar 2012

For Joanna Suchy, who is studying a psychology conversion masters at Kingston, receiving the postgraduate scholarship means being able to follow her dream of becoming an educational psychologist, helping children and young people to improve their lives. "Because I want to go into educational psychology, I need quite a lot of experience, like mentoring and working with children and young people, so the scholarship means that I can do voluntary work as well, rather than having to make sure I get paid work," Joanna explains.

Joanna is so grateful to the donors who made it all possible, and she's determined to ensure that their money doesn't go to waste. "I know they're taking a bit of a gamble on me, but I'm definitely going to make sure it pays off, because I want to do well for myself as well as for them," said Joanna. "Nothing is going to stop me!"

Student Hardship Fund

What's the use of half a degree?

We can never be sure what's around the corner. That's why we have the Student Hardship Fund, helping students who have encountered unforeseen financial difficulties complete their education. In the last academic year this fund has helped 47 students finish their degree. For instance, one of our students was left homeless after a relationship breakdown. Left with absolutely no money to pay for her place in student halls, we stepped in and saved the day. Likewise, a student who suddenly lost his father, halfway through his degree, needed our help to keep a roof over his head. He went on to finish his degree and is now a full-time teacher.

Diana Crosbie

Postgraduate scholar 2012

Although Diana Crosbie was wondering how she was going to fund her masters, she was determined to find a way, even if it meant life was going to be a struggle. So, when she discovered that she'd won the scholarship, it was a massive relief.

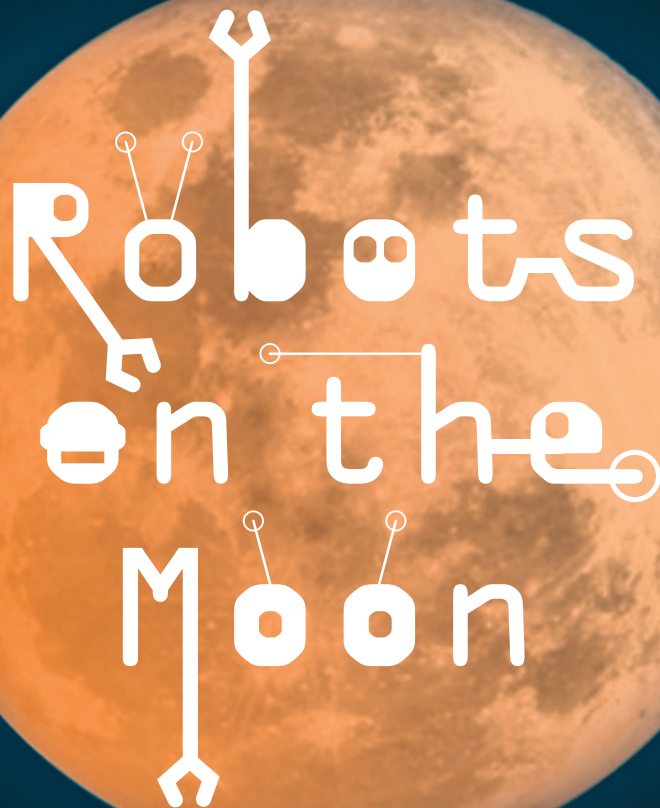

"I did somersaults when I received the call; I was just jumping around," said Diana, who had to try and explain her jubilation to her 6-year-old daughter. "I was absolutely delighted," she added. And it didn't stop there. When Diana shared her news with her parents, they were thrilled too. "They were more impressed with that than when I got my degree!" she explained.

Diana hopes to become a clinical psychologist and is particularly interested in working with people with substance abuse and dependency problems. "I'm volunteering in a rehab clinic at the moment, so getting that hands-on experience is really important alongside my Clinical Applications of Psychology masters," said Diana. "Getting the scholarship gives me the opportunity to carry on with my volunteer work. Everything seems to be coming together at the moment."

Diana is so grateful to the donors for enabling her to pursue her dream. "They're definitely giving someone an opportunity to make something of themselves, and really give something back as well.

It's amazing!" Diana said.

The Opportunities Fund

Robots on the Moon

With the help of the Opportunities Fund, Kingston students have been able to enter one of the world's most prestigious competitions, the Nasa Lunabotics Mining Competition. Tasked with the design and manufacture of a robot which could actually end up making mining expeditions to the moon, this will involve our students exercising various skills at the highest level (quite literally), such as advanced mechanics, electrical engineering, programming, mathematics and astronautics. As well as developing practical skills, the competition is inspiring students from across all fields of engineering.

Mark Olgobo, who took part while working on his masters in Mechatronics said: "Without the help of the Opportunities Fund to obtain sensors and materials, this project would have never 'taken off'."

Firat Elbeyioglu

Postgraduate scholar 2012

For Firat Elbeyioglu, winning the postgraduate scholarship will not only change his life, but could also save the lives of others.

With an undergraduate degree in biochemistry from Kingston, Firat is now venturing on the next step of his dream to eradicate the world of the parasite Schistosoma mansoni, which is transmitted through dirty water, affecting people in third-world countries. As a masters-by-research student, Firat will be trying to find out how the parasite matures in the human body. "I'm interested in infectious diseases. Viruses and parasites have a lot in common: they need the host to survive, but these areas are so weak in research. Without it, we're never going to cure anything, so you need to get that knowledge first and then identify where you're going to act, and then act; and then hopefully treat," explains Firat.

After he completes his masters, Firat is hoping to be able to put his research into practice by doing a medical degree. "It depends on what opportunities arise, but ultimately it's about doing the research and then, hopefully, one day putting it into practice. Maybe one day you'll hear my name!"

Firat believes he couldn't achieve all this without the scholarship. "This scholarship allows us to fulfil our potential, which may open more doors in the future," adds Firat.

How we raise money

Melanie Kydd Student fundraiser

As many of you know, one of the ways in which we raise money – over half a million pounds so far – is by getting current Kingston students to telephone you. Of course, it's not just about the fundraising; it's also a fantastic opportunity for our students to chat to those who have travelled the road that they are now undertaking. One such student, Melanie Kydd from Australia, certainly found it a rewarding experience.

"It was such a pleasure and a confidence boost to talk to people who have been at Kingston before me. They were full of amazing advice and so friendly. Not only did I learn so much about the University, but I also managed to raise much more money than I thought I would. It gave me such a buzz to feel that I was helping in this way and making a big difference to people's education."

The Opportunities Fund

Enhancing the Student Experience at Dorich House

Giving our students the chance to engage with the local community in innovative and inspiring ways is at the heart of the Opportunities Fund. The Collection Connections programme, a series of educational events and workshops at the Dorich House Museum run by students and staff, is reaching out to Kingston primary schools and colleges, unleashing the creative powers of the next generation. The artistic outcomes of this project will be exhibited at the Museum later this year.
