

What's the use of half a degree?

Annual Fund 2012/13
Donor Report

I would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to the alumni and friends of Kingston University whose gifts over the past year have enhanced and enriched the lives of our students.

Your generosity

has enabled the funding of the many projects and activities detailed in this report. You helped provide postgraduate scholarships to even more of the world's brightest students, and helped support students who, through no fault of their own, have found themselves in financial difficulties, ensuring that they are able to continue their education. Gifts from you have changed lives.

The time and effort we put into improving the quality of our student experience, helping them to develop personally and academically, and allowing them to flourish and achieve their full potential, is a cornerstone of Kingston University's continuing success. Your donations have directly supported this.

I do hope that you enjoy reading about the many benefits that your donations have brought to Kingston. Once again, thank you for all that you have made possible.

Professor Julius Weinberg,
Vice Chancellor of Kingston University

* Kingston Court of Benefactors

Having just completed my third telephone fundraising campaign, I am so pleased to have this opportunity to say thank you to you all. I have spoken to many of you myself, and, in recognising many of the names on this list, I fondly recall some of the conversations that I have had. The advice you have given, the memories you have shared and, of course, the money that you have donated, have had a major impact on both myself and the University. Indeed, listening to your Kingston stories, some of them going back as far as the 1950s, is both humbling and inspiring. It really has given me a sense of what an amazing institution Kingston is.

One of the things that we try to get across during our fundraising calls is the importance of the student experience. We tell you about the projects that we are raising money for and how much of a difference that makes. But it also becomes apparent very quickly that, just by talking to you – those who have gone through exactly what we are going through now – is in itself a great experience. I often find myself putting the telephone down, turning to my fellow students and letting them know about the inspiring conversation that I have just had.

On behalf of myself and the rest of the student fundraising team, can I say a big thank you for all that you have done and all that you give!

Your gifts to the Annual Fund...

...allow us to attract the brightest and best students from all around the world to Kingston University, encouraging academic excellence and allowing talented young graduates to continue to higher levels of learning and research. This year we have been able to award a record 20 scholarships to some very gifted individuals who are sure to go on and make a major impact in whatever they choose to do.

Of course, the best way to understand the importance of postgraduate scholarships, and why we continue to support the best and the brightest, is by listening to the scholars themselves...

Stories from our scholars

"For most of my life I was heavily involved in archaeology on land and under water. Then, in 2000, I suffered a spinal cord injury and I am now a tetraplegic. I spent a few years after my injury volunteering for various disability groups, but I really wanted to see if there was a way back into archaeology for me.

"I took a BA in Archaeology and Landscape at Sussex University, and we did a module on geographical information systems (GIS). I realised quickly that this was a field open to me, and also a field in demand.

"Kingston University is a centre of excellence for GIS, with real depth of software, equipment and teaching. It also offers distance learning, which is important for me as it limits the time I need to spend travelling.

"I was overjoyed to get the scholarship, which will pay half of my fees. But the impact isn't just on me; it's not just about my qualification. The scholarship pays for me to learn a skill that I can take back to my community to be of benefit to them. I plan to use my GIS skills to offer a professional service to local and community archaeology groups, so the donations have a wider impact than just me getting my MSc. I am so grateful to Kingston alumni for making all of this possible!"

"I graduated from Cambridge University with a first and was offered a masters place there. But after three years at Cambridge, I wanted a different educational experience. I looked around and was so impressed by the people who teach here that I applied for the course and the scholarship.

"The one thing I was stressed about was finding the money, and then I found out I had the scholarship. I was really pleased; it solved some real problems for me.

"I would like to say thank you to the donors who made it possible. Especially given the times we are living in and when so much education funding has been cut, it makes a real difference."

Jack Etches

MA Philosophy & Contemporary Critical Theory

"I am over the moon to receive this scholarship. It eases thinking about how much debt I'll be in at the end of my studies, and is a nice boost for my confidence at the start of the course. I am already working full time and so my course will start to help in my professional life straight away.

"I am the full circle of alumni donations. In my second year at Kingston, studying Politics and International Relations, I was a student caller, speaking to alumni and asking if they were willing to donate. It was that experience that planted the seed of hope that this was something I could apply for. Now I am benefiting with a scholarship, and, knowing the good it does, I will be a donor one day.

"I want to say thank you to all the donors. It has really made a difference to my life. You can be sure your money goes somewhere good."

The Student Hardship Fund

Most students embark on their degrees confident that they will get to complete them. However, occasionally they find themselves in severe financial difficulties and contemplate having to drop out. This is where the Student Hardship Fund steps in. For those students who have found themselves in this position, and always through no fault of their own, the fund is the difference between finishing their degrees or dropping out. As one former recipient of the fund put it: "What's the use of half a degree?"

In the last year the Student Hardship Fund has enabled 43 students to continue with their studies. Here are two stories that illustrate just how vital this resource has become.

The international effect

The Hardship Fund isn't just there for UK students. With students from all over the world coming to Kingston, many kinds of problems can arise.

For example, the current conflict taking place in Syria has had a direct impact on some of our students. This year the fund has helped four Syrian students to continue with their studies.

We spoke to one student, who wished to remain anonymous, who told us the following:

"The conflict has left my home town devastated, and the money that my family and I had put away to see me through my studies just isn't available anymore. The Student Hardship Fund was there to save the day, and I and my family will be forever grateful to Kingston's amazing alumni!"

Jason Seaton's story

During the first year of Jason Seaton's Geology degree, he suddenly found himself in the very difficult position of having Student Finance UK declare him ineligible for student support. That Jason had a wife and a baby to support placed enormous strain on his ability to carry on and complete his studies.

After carefully reviewing his case, the Student Hardship Fund stepped in to help Jason through this difficult period. Following a thorough investigation by Student Finance UK, Jason's right to funding was eventually restored. However, this took time and, without the fund to tide him over, Jason would have had to leave his course. Instead he went on to complete his degree and is now working as a site investigator for a reputed engineering firm.

"The Student Hardship Fund was the difference between me dropping out or completing my degree. I cannot thank the donors to the Annual Fund enough, and will be making my own donation to the fund at the earliest opportunity."

The Opportunities Fund – making ideas a reality!

Kingston staff and students are full of wonderful ideas! The Opportunities Fund, fuelled by your donations, is giving funding to the best of those ideas, each one having a positive impact on the overall student experience.

Among the projects that we have supported this year are student sign-language courses, the Kingston Art School digital archive, an ignition system for a hybrid rocket engine, the Gipsy Hill photograph restoration project, and a student film festival.

Indeed, every single donation we receive will have a positive impact on the lives of our students, and can benefit others in the wider community. Your generosity truly makes a difference as can be seen by the following two projects.

Opportunities Fund – pond-dipping platform

Through your generous contributions to the Opportunities Fund, a new pond-dipping platform has been installed at the Kingston Hill campus.

The search for pond life is a serious business here at Kingston. Not only will this give invaluable hands-on experience to our biology students but, with biodiversity increasingly on the curriculum for schools, the platform will help our student teachers learn how to teach pond-dipping.

The impact on the University's ecosystems will also be greatly enhanced. Among many others, smooth newts, caddisflies and dazzling southern hawker dragonflies have been recorded this year. And, as the pond's health continues to improve, the habitat will naturally become more diverse and attract a greater range of wildlife, and, who knows, perhaps a former resident will return: the incredibly rare Great crested newt.

Two wheels or four wheels – the Opportunities Fund keeps on winning

Many of our alumni will know about the support that we gave to Kingston's record-breaking eco-motorcycle, which is now being raced competitively at events like the TT. But, this year, the fund has switched its attention to four wheels.

With the help of your donations, Kingston's engineering students have built an electric racing car from scratch, and then taken it to Silverstone to race in Formula Student, the world's largest student motorsport event. Competing against 141 other universities from more than 34 countries, Kingston University proved to be the only UK team with a viable electric vehicle.

Mechanical engineering student Hugo Valencia summed up what the opportunity meant to him and his teammates. "The pressure to get the car to Silverstone was immense, but the feeling of pride and achievement once we managed it was incredible. It's been the highlight of my time at Kingston, and has enhanced my knowledge in a way that just isn't possible through reading textbooks.

"That the University's alumni helped to make this possible through their donations means the world to us. I hope we did them proud!"

With more events planned, the team are looking to build on this experience, improving and innovating and pushing the boundaries of what is possible with an electric car.

Furthermore, final-year Engineering MSc student Sabine Brosch (on the left) who honed her skills on the Kingston Formula Student team, has gone on to win the Leader of Tomorrow category at the prestigious 2013 Automotive Supply Chain awards. Not only enhancing the student experience, but allowing the most talented to shine.

Why I donate...

"As the beneficiary of alumni donations to the Annual Fund, which provided me with a postgraduate scholarship, I really wanted to give something back at the earliest opportunity. I know first-hand about the vital work that the Annual Fund does – be this providing scholarships like mine, or ensuring that students get to finish their degrees despite unforeseen financial difficulties. In fact, I can think of very few causes more worthy than a first-class Kingston education. I did my first degree at Kingston and, after getting experience in the wider world, I had no hesitation in returning to do my masters, as they provided the right mix of theoretical and practical content. This balanced approach has proved to be one of my most valuable assets as an IT consultant."

Graduation year

"I had the very great fortune to go to university when students received a full maintenance grant and all tuition fees were paid. I had the best three years of my life at Kingston and I want others to enjoy studying there too. This is why I donate to the Student Hardship Fund. Ours was such a lucky generation; though, of course, we didn't know it then!

"When I went to interview the deputy director (as they were called) for the student newspaper, he asked if I wanted to work in journalism and arranged for me to have work experience at the local paper. I did so well I was given a job the minute I left. Without Kingston, I would never have become a journalist and later a broadcaster. I'm now using my journalistic skills to help raise the profile of charities involved in education. I've had a wonderfully fulfilling career thanks to Kingston. Time to give a bit back."

Research Fund

Kingston is a university that has placed research right at the heart of its vision.

The impact of the University's research can be seen in the local region and on the world stage. Our forward-thinking ethos and our active engagement with other organisations help to ensure our research is relevant, cutting-edge and of value to others. Much of our work is applied, with beneficiaries ranging from local businesses and cultural institutions, to government departments and international conglomerates.

However, all this cannot take place without the necessary groundwork that our students need to establish in order to make that impact. This is why the Annual Fund has made Research one of its core projects for the year ahead.

Your donations to the Research Fund will enable Kingston's finest doctoral researchers to present their research at major conferences in their field, fostering and strengthening their work.
