Report of the Acting Chair of the Court of Governors

I am honoured to have been appointed Acting Chair of the Court of Governors and Council. I have a long history with LSE as a School Governor since 2005 and Vice Chair since 2014, a member of Council since 2008 and I was Chair of the Audit Committee 2010 to 2014. I am delighted that Dame Shirley Pearce will assume the role of Chair of the Court of Governors and Council on 1 January 2017.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Professor Craig Calhoun for his contribution to the continued success of the School during his four years in office to 31 August 2016. Professor Julia Black will continue to drive LSE forward as interim Director from 1 September 2016 until the new Director is in post. I am pleased that Dame Nemat (Minouche) Shafik, Deputy Governor of the Bank of England and LSE Alumna, will take up office as the 16th Director of the School on 1 September 2017.

There is no doubt that the outcome of the EU Referendum on 23 June 2016 presents new challenges for the School over the coming months and years, but it also creates opportunities. LSE is well placed to offer technical expertise on many aspects of the UK's exit from EU and we will be running a programme of events on related issues to contribute to the public debate.

We have completed and implemented a review of our Governance arrangements and Senior Management Structure initiated by my predecessor, Lord Paul Myners, whom I thank.

Elsewhere, the School thrives and develops. In January 2016 Council adopted a new Education Strategy which will continue the School's strong tradition of interaction between research, teaching and learning. It seeks to improve the experience our students have while at the School and prepare them for the increasingly complex and challenging world into which they will graduate. The major building work on the Centre Building Development at the heart of our estate has continued over the past year. The demolition phase is almost complete and we will soon start to see the new buildings rising upwards. Student facilities have been developed across campus to compensate for the closure of the central buildings, but we all look forward to the improved space the development will bring.

It was announced in June that the School would launch an ambitious programme designed to build a global community of leaders dedicated to changing policy, practice and public dialogue around inequalities. The programme was developed by the School's International Inequalities Institute and created with a grant of £64.4m from The Atlantic Philanthropies, the largest philanthropic donation in LSE's history.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone, governors, office holders, academic and professional services staff who work so hard for the good governance of the School. I look forward to continuing to work with you all over the coming year.

Alan Elias

Acting Chair of Court and Council

Report of the Director of the School

When this report is published, I will have stepped down as Director of the School. I remain enthusiastic about LSE and its potential. Serving the School remains one of the most important things I have done and I will continue to serve as Centennial Professor in the Department of Sociology. The School's key priorities for 2015-16 were to put in place a Strategic Plan, with a core focus on teaching excellence, research of international quality and effective public engagement.

At the top of our agenda was our vision to improve substantially the quality of our educational programmes. This is central to the School's mission and its finances, because student fees are our major revenue source. LSE has a global reputation for its research and we want to ensure its teaching is regarded in the same light, recognised for its innovation, its dynamic learning environment and its interdisciplinary focus. We want our graduates to be well informed, with critical and analytical skills that are globally transferable and well regarded. An LSE education is rigorous preparation for future careers and citizenship worldwide. Professor Paul Kelly, as Pro-Director for Education, introduced a new Education Strategy. He and I announced in February 2016 that LSE would invest £11m in education and student experience over the next three years. We also introduced a new timetable which allowed for more time for beyond-the-classroom teaching and embedding research into taught programmes to offer new experiences for students; this includes assessing class participation and group activities, field trips within London, experiential research projects and Lent Term exams. These developments will be vital as, disappointingly, we saw a further drop in LSE's student satisfaction rating in the latest National Student Survey (NSS), released in August 2016. The School's leadership intends to address this challenge head on and I know that Professor Black will prioritise this during her tenure.

LSE's Centre Building Redevelopment continues apace and will create a state-of-the-art, flexible and highly sustainable academic and teaching building. In April 2016, LSE announced that Dublin based practice Grafton Architects had been selected as the winners of the international architectural competition to design 44

Lincoln's Inn Fields / The Paul Marshall Building, our next major building project. Since the announcement, LSE and Grafton Architects have been busy setting up the project arrangements to ensure everything goes smoothly as the teams will be working together for the next six years until the building is finished and occupied in 2021. We can look forward to a world class, flourishing campus.

In 2015-16, LSE Advancement enjoyed another record year in philanthropic income secured for strategic School projects, with £85m raised from alumni and friends, trusts, foundations and business partners. This total included the largest gift ever received by LSE (£64.4m from the Atlantic Philanthropies to create the Atlantic Fellows programme at the International Inequalities Institute), the largest gift from an alumnus (£10m pledged by Firoz Lalji to endow the Centre forAfrica), and a record year for the LSE Annual Fund (more than £1m raised from 3,369 donors). The Annual Fund supported 93 initiatives across LSE during the year, including 87 that directly enhance the student experience. Over £4m in philanthropic research grants was generated through, or in collaboration with, Research Division.

2015-16 has been a successful year for the School. There are key external challenges ahead, not least in relation to the Higher Education Bill and Brexit, but my sense is that the School is in a strong position to take these on. It has been a privilege to serve the School and I wish Professor Black and indeed the whole School every success.

Professor Craig Calhoun

Director

Welcome from the Interim Director

LSE is an extraordinary institution. I am delighted to have been appointed Interim Director from September 2016 and will continue my work as Pro-Director (Research) simultaneously, whilst the School recruits a new Director.

I must pay tribute to Professor Calhoun for his exceptional contribution during his term as Director. My primary goal during 2016-17 is to continue to implement the School's strategy, building on our significant strengths and addressing areas where we need to improve, alongside managing the rapidly changing political context in the wake of the EU Referendum and the Higher Education Bill.

Education Strategy

Professor Paul Kelly, Pro-Director (Education), recently published the LSE Education Strategy 2015-2020, which sets the path for the School to lead in the provision of research-informed social science education. An LSE education is designed for students who are keen to engage critically with their discipline and real world challenges, and who want to equip themselves, professionally and personally, for the world into which they will graduate.

LSE is making an extra investment of £11m over the next three years to enhance the education we provide and students' experience. This year, we have established a full complement of activities focused on supporting our students to realise their educational and professional ambitions. We have launched LSE LIFE, which is a new academic, personal and professional development centre for LSE's students on both undergraduate and taught postgraduate programmes; this will provide them with ongoing opportunities to develop academic, communication and research skills, learn languages, get advice on personal effectiveness and in making life choices, and gain insights into graduate recruitment and career paths. We have introduced the new Education Career Track, which supports LSE teaching staff and provides the opportunities for the development of specialist educators who wish to build their careers through teaching and educational leadership. Alongside this, a new Pro-Director Vision Fund has been launched to support the development of innovative LSE programmes. We are committed to investing in education and engaging with our students to enhance our world class provision.

External Environment

The School Management Committee is leading on our response to the outcome of the EU referendum. This includes the School's academic and intellectual response, its Communication and Public Affairs strategies, and the status of progress with developing plans to mitigate potential negative implications and to exploit new opportunities that may arise from the outcome of the EU referendum. The School has reacted swiftly to collect data/information to assess its level of exposure to any immediate impact and is putting in place actions to mitigate potential threats. Whilst the School has identified threats to its institutional interests, for example the future of research funding and the status of EU national staff and students, it also sees an opportunity to play a proactive role in influencing the media, public, policy makers and politicians as they react to, and in the latter cases lead, the process of exiting the EU and redefining the UK's relations with Europe and the world.

In the short term, and most urgently, the School is keen to reassure its EU national staff and students that they are welcome, secure and vital to the success of LSE. It is also proactively engaging with the Brexit negotiation preparations to try and shape the landscape facing LSE and feed LSE expertise into the ministers and officials working on Brexit in UK and Europe. The School is aiming to offer support to government whilst using every opportunity to lobby for protection for our staff and students and the security of EU research funding. We are also keen to be on the front foot to protect our EU funding and status within the EU as a research partner. We want to protect our reputation as a world leading, international facing University.

In the longer term the School wants to continue to attract the best international students and develop and deliver a teaching offer that fully reflects and examines the impact of Brexit. LSE wants to engage the public and share our research and knowledge. We also want to use our knowledge and capacity to advise, train and support civil servants and policy makers as they devise a Brexit plan and use our research capability to examine the consequences of Brexit and the policy options now available to the UK government and the EU.

Since the result of the referendum, the School and the higher education sector have been operating within an uncertain external environment and it is anticipated that this will continue for some time. We are fully cognisant that the implications of Brexit are not the only challenge facing LSE and the higher education sector as there is a range of changes ahead. The School is engaging with the government's programme of reform to higher education regulation, as expressed through the Higher Education and Research Bill, the review led by Professor Lord Stern of the Research Excellence Framework (REF) and the introduction of the Teaching Excellence Framework (TEF). We are mindful to consider the potential threats and opportunities for LSE arising from the Brexit situation, alongside a range of influential external changes. This changing landscape will impact on the way that the School works and we have teams across our Professional Service Divisions seeking to understand how it will do so and to plan how we respond.

Financial position

LSE is fortunate to be in a strong financial position. We are grateful that our Financial Statements show a healthy cash flow that allows us to invest in our campus and in the quality of education we provide. However, we are conscious that the external environment may impact on our income and we will closely monitor the financial impact and plan for contingencies.

I look forward to the challenges ahead and consider it an honour to act as Interim Director until the School welcomes my successor Minouche Shafik in September 2017.

Professor Julia Black

Interim Director, LSE

Report of the Directors

Purpose and strategy

The LSE's Council adopted the LSE Strategy 2020 in December 2015. Our strategy orients the School to the next stage in its continuing development and sets out specific areas of focus for our activity as we seek to keep advancing the quality of our teaching and research whilst retaining the vitality and public impact of the work carried out by our students and staff.

The School approaches this strategy aware of significant challenges facing the institution and the wider higher education sector; these include:

- Sharp decline in proportion of the School budget provided direct from UK government funding, with direct grants falling from nearly 80 per cent to less than 10 per cent and the consequent transformation into a university funded mainly by student fees.
- Intensified competition from both UK and international universities (and research and educational provision in other organisations), many of which have improved performance and are continuing to innovate in technology, educational programmes and their global reach.
- Educational performance and productivity inconsistent with our high aspirations and impressive performance in research.

In approaching the development and delivery of our strategy the School has had to make a number of strategic choices. The Council recently reaffirmed their commitment to:

- Building a core faculty committed to both education and research.
- Focussing on social science and closely related fields that contribute knowledge to understanding and changing society, collaborating with but not seeking to expand into other major dimensions of academic work.
- Strengthening face-to-face education and the intellectual community at our central London campus and developing thriving educational, research, and public engagement at this campus; this may be complemented by programmes overseas or benefit from technological innovation.

In pursuing our strategy we will continue to focus on our six key strategic themes:

- 1 We will substantially improve the quality of our educational programmes including the overall student experience, and develop opportunities for the brightest students regardless of their background.
- 2 We will strengthen our commitment to equity, diversity and inclusion and take relevant action throughout the institution.
- 3 We will continually improve faculty quality, research performance and intellectual innovation and enhance the quality of our Professional Services staff.
- 4 We will lead (and continue to be recognised in leading) in innovative, international interdisciplinary, and issue-oriented social science.
- 5 We will enhance and diversify our revenue streams.
- 6 We will secure an estate and other facilities commensurate with our standing and aspirations.

Departments and Professional Service Divisions within the School have already begun to integrate these aims into their own strategic and operational plans and the Council receives a regular update from the Director on the School's progress in meeting these aims.

The goal of this strategy is clear: to enable LSE to thrive and to show in the future the brilliance it has exhibited in the past, to achieve the highest intellectual quality, and to contribute to society.

Strategic review of the 2015-16 Financial Statements

The 2015-16 results represent another strong financial performance for the School. Student numbers have grown in line with current plans, we have made significant investments in improving the student experience, increased the number and quality of academic staff, sustained high quality research activities and for a second successive year secured transformational philanthropic investment to support the work of our interdisciplinary institutes.

Changes in accounting standards and the new Higher Education Statement of Recommended Practice

The 2015-16 Annual Accounts have been prepared in accordance with the new 2015 Higher Education Statement of Recommended Practice (SORP). This supersedes the 2007 SORP and aligns accounting for higher education with Financial Reporting Standard (FRS)102. Last year's figures, including the opening balance sheet have been restated to reflect the changes required by the 2015 SORP.

This has had a significant impact, for example reducing reported net assets at 31 July 2015 from £509.9m to £417.9m – see note 29.

References in this Strategic Review to year-on-year movements and the financial plans of the School are made on a basis consistent with the new SORP.

The main changes the new SORP brings to the financial statements are:

- The Income and Expenditure statement and Statement of Recognised Gains and Losses (STRGL) are replaced with a single Statement of Comprehensive Income (SOCi).
- As a result, new endowments and changes in the market value of endowments are both reflected on the face of the SOCi. We will usually report philanthropic gifts on the basis of the funds actually received during the year.

- The inclusion in the SOCi of the present value of the School's commitment to fund past service deficits in the USS and SAUL pension schemes.
- The inclusion of the School's interest rates swaps at fair value.
- Changes to the way income from contracts, donations and grants is recognised.

The changes to the way income is reported may, in certain circumstance, lead to the recognition of an entire grant or gift as income in the year of receipt even if its use is restricted to meeting expenses many years into the future. We are developing our internal reporting to ensure we can track between periods, related revenues and expenditures.

The effect of these accounting changes will be more volatile figures reported in the Consolidated Statement of Comprehensive Income and Expenditure than in its predecessor, the Income and Expenditure Statement. In anticipation of this change, the School has moved to focus its financial planning towards an "Earnings (based on unrestricted earnings) before interest paid, tax, depreciation and amortisation" (EBITDA), measure of income and expenditure.

Highlights

In summary, the Statement of Consolidated Income for 2015-16 shows a surplus for the year of £31.2m, £1.0m unrestricted and £30.2m restricted.

The EBITDA measure is less volatile as it excludes provisions for future costs and non-cash revenues such as unrealised investment gains, movements in derivatives or pension provisions. The School's Council has adopted a preliminary target of 10 per cent of revenue for this measure. This is required to meet our interest and capital repayments, to fund further capital investment and allow sufficient flexibility to support the new academic initiatives that ensure the School remains innovative. Table 2 shows the School's EBITDA trend in recent years and our forecast for it over the next few years. We expect it to increase after the completion of the Centre Building development when we can accommodate some modest growth in full time student numbers. A combination of strong student recruitment, a significant and sustained contribution from ancillary activities and strong financial management have delivered substantial surpluses in recent years and 2015-16 continues this pattern. This underlines the strength of the School's operating model and demonstrates that we are well placed financially to deal with our short and longer term challenges and commitments while continuing to invest in our campus.

In an increasingly competitive environment we are pleased to have increased our operating income from fees, grants, research, residences and other operating activities by 6.1 per cent. However, this was exceeded by growth in operating costs of 7.4 per cent and while much of the excess was planned investment in faculty, academic initiatives and student support, tight controls over our indirect costs will be critical during the period of economic uncertainty which lies ahead.

As a result of the Atlantic Philanthropies and Firoz Lalji gifts we received this year, Donation and Endowment income recognised in the year was almost £30m. In addition to securing the future of two of our new interdisciplinary centres, these gifts will provide additional income of £52m over the next five years.

The restated 2014-15 figures shown in Table 1 include a one-off charge related to the School's contribution to the USS pension scheme's past service deficit. The 2015 SORP requires that the present value of the commitment to meet a share of the deficit be recognised in the accounts, which its predecessor did not. The deficit is based on the last triennial valuation in March 2014, but as the new funding arrangements were not agreed until November 2015, it is charged in 2014-15 rather than being reflected as an opening adjustment.

Scope

The financial statements comprise the results of the School, consolidated with the results of its subsidiaries. Our subsidiaries' operations are vacation letting of student accommodation, consultancy services, exploitation of intellectual property, operation of executive education programmes, and overseas fundraising. For commercial, legal and taxation reasons these activities are channelled through limited companies which, where appropriate, transfer their profits to the School through an annual payment of Gift Aid.

In addition, the School is a partner in the TRIUM Executive MBA programme with New York University and HEC in Paris. The School's share of this programme is incorporated on a proportional basis.

The LSE Students' Union is a separately constituted body over which the School does not exert significant influence and it is not consolidated in these financial statements.

Ensuring financial sustainability

The School's ambition is to continue as a world leader in research and teaching in the social sciences, so the generation of sustainable surpluses is essential to provide the flexibility necessary to invest in the academic initiatives this ambition requires.

Each year, the School's Council as governing body, approves a 10-year Financial Plan that captures and quantifies the Strategic and Operational plans of the School and sets them alongside a prudent and transparent set of assumptions. The financial results portrayed in the Plan are measured against a range of targets, and then tested against the risks identified in the School's Strategic Risk Register to ensure we have a reasonable expectation of delivering a sustainable long term position. The first year of the 2016 Plan represents the School's operating budget for 2016-17. Any significant investments, such as those proposed for the redevelopment of 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields, or recent investments in improving student experience, are measured and tested against the Plan and where appropriate examined on a standalone basis before any final decision is made. This allows for a quantified assessment of the sustainability of the individual elements of the Plan and of the Plan as a whole.

As part of this financial planning process a range of financial and non-financial measures including those set out in the next table are tracked and reviewed when the Plan is agreed and regularly thereafter through the year. The move to the 2015 SORP has necessitated modifying them as consistent comparative data is not available at present.

Investing in a world-class estate

Developing the campus and our ambition to orientate it towards Lincoln's Inn Fields is central to the Strategic Plan – we will invest at least £360m over the next 10 years in the redevelopment of the campus, starting with the Centre building site, and continuing with 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields.

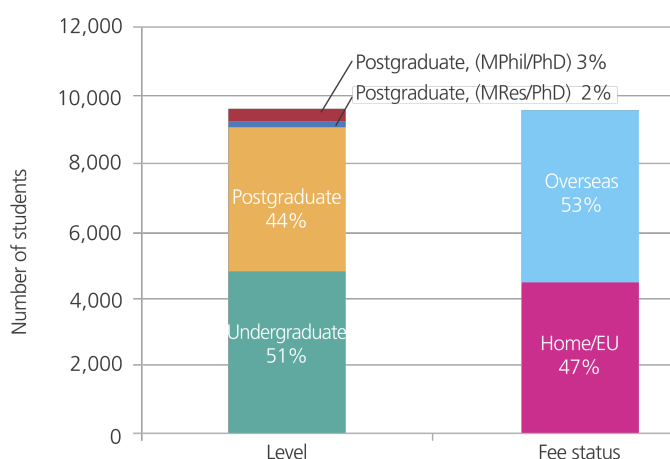

Great buildings on campus will provide a world class academic environment for our students and faculty, facilitating path breaking research, supporting recruitment and retention, creating connections physically and intellectually and enabling innovative and interactive teaching. Off-campus, the School is working to increase the provision of accommodation for our students as we know this is an important part of the LSE experience and a critical factor in attracting the diversity of students that gives the School its unique character.

Report of the Directors

Full time students in 2015-16

Origin of full time students in 2015-16

Support for learning – Scholarships and bursaries

The School is recognised by the Economic and Social Research Council as a Doctoral Training Centre (DTC). 2015-16 was the fifth cohort to enter, setting a steady state of 150 funded students. Including the new arrivals to the DTC, the new intake to the School's fully funded studentships and other awards, over 65 per cent of the total number enrolled at the School had full funding. This funding includes a maintenance grant and fees paid from School resources or through external sources such as the Research Councils or philanthropic support.

In 2013 the School launched a new flagship studentship scheme that supports outstanding research students by fully funding their postgraduate research

Funding strategy

The School's strategy is to fund proposed capital development on a portfolio rather than building-by-building basis, using cash flow and cash reserves to leverage external grants and donations and periodically raise cash through long-term debt as required.

Over the past five years we have generated £276m in operating cash (an annual average of 12.6 per cent of income). During the development phase for the Centre Buildings we expect this to fall a little below this average but once the building is available in 2021 our planned student growth will see this figure rise back to its historic level.

Operating revenues and costs

Undergraduates

The School received nearly 18,000 applications for full time undergraduate study in the academic year 2015-16 (Table 5). We made offers to 21 per cent of applicants and enrolled 9 per cent as new undergraduate students. We have an average of 11.8 applications per place for undergraduate study, a level that has remained strong in recent years.

Postgraduate

At the postgraduate level, we enrolled 3,970 students, two-thirds of whom were from outside the UK and EU. We have an average of just under five applications for every place.

Report of the Directors

at the School. During 2015-16 the School had 103 new fully funded studentships, 55 per cent of the total number enrolled at the School. This scheme provides for a maintenance grant and fees to be paid from School resources or through external sources such as the Research Councils or philanthropic support.

The School has two flagship funding schemes for doctoral students – its own LSE PhD Studentship scheme which had 173 fully funded students across all years, and the Economic and Social Research Council Doctoral Training Centre (DTC) scheme with a further 150. In addition, PhD students are funded by philanthropic support and other Research Councils and some institutes and departments provide scholarships. All these awards provide a maintenance grant and fees. Additionally, the School sets aside other funds to support conference attendance and support for the writing up period, available to all PhD students.

Support for learning – New Education Strategy

In 2015 the School launched its 5-year Education Strategy with the three key strategic objectives that:

- 1 LSE departments lead in the provision of excellent disciplinary and interdisciplinary education.
- 2 LSE graduates are well informed, critical, analytically sophisticated and globally employable.
- 3 Students and staff interact to build a dynamic learning community that reflects the School's distinctive identity.

As part of the School's commitment to this strategy an additional investment of over £11m has been earmarked in the School's Financial Plan beginning in 2015-16 with a £3.5m investment in the creation of the innovative LSE LIFE space in our Library and the recruitment of additional staff in our Teaching and Learning Centre.

The first objective of excellent disciplinary education is financially supported through the creation of a career track for academics whose main contribution to LSE will be through leading courses and programmes that are "excellent". The track was approved at Appointments Committee in June 2016, with the first staff "migrated" from existing "teaching only" roles in August. During 2016-17 academic year, departments will be able to recruit academic staff to the new track for the first time, and will be able to call on transition funding to do this. Nearly £3.0m has been set aside from the financial plan to enable departments to appoint such staff and then integrate them into their staffing budgets over a three year period. In addition, academic contribution pay has been focussed on rewarding academic staff who deliver excellent and innovative education within departmental programmes.

The main capital investment relates to objective two on producing able and sophisticated graduates. The School identified the ground floor of the Library as the ideal place to create an academic, personal and professional development centre, LSE LIFE. This centre opened on schedule and on budget on 19 September and it provides students with one place for all of the development opportunities, resources and support provided by all the different School services. The centre is also a flexible space within which departmental programmes can host the use of innovative assessment methods on their courses or complement their taught provision with applied and experiential learning opportunities.

The investment in education also provides a new Pro-Director "Vision" Fund, of £100,000 p.a. for three years to fund programme-level enhancement projects and institutional research into developing LSE education. Finally, the investment includes professional service staffing to support educational provision at LSE. This includes a team for the LSE LIFE centre, but also a post to provide increased data management capacity to deliver better management information for decisions on educational design and development, a student communications post to develop the channels through which the School communicates with its students, two educational development posts to work with academic staff on their teaching and a small Educational Strategy Unit, to support the Pro-Director Education, and the School more widely, in implementing the Education Strategy.

Higher Education Funding Council of England (HEFCE) grants

The School's primary sources of direct public funding are HEFCE grants and Research Council funding for research projects. HEFCE funding comprises three elements, quality related research funding (QR), teaching funding and knowledge exchange funding, titled Higher Education Innovation Funding (HEIF).

HEFCE funding for teaching is largely confined to HEFCE initiatives to mitigate the impact of fees on the diversity and access of students to higher education and the higher costs of delivering teaching in Central London. The School's research block grant (QR) increased by £2.0m to £18.8m in 2015-16 as a result of our outstanding success in the 2014 Research Excellence Framework (REF). LSE was placed at or close to the top in the rankings of research quality and while this 12.1 per cent increase is welcome we note that academic department costs have risen by 12.5 per cent since 2013-14. This highlights the continuing pressure the School faces to balance the costs of world-class research with the revenues that it generates.

We received £3.0m in 2015-16 in HEIF funding to support Knowledge Exchange. This money is supporting and developing a broad range of knowledge-based interactions between universities and the wider world, which will result in economic and social benefit to the UK. The School welcomes the Funding Council's commitment to this funding stream and we are currently finalising our three-year strategy for its deployment.

Research grants and contracts

2015-16 has been a successful year for research at LSE. A strategy to grow our grants portfolio has seen increased funding from Research Council UK (RCUK) and other UK government sources. This along with an increase in commissioned research by the Department for International Development (DfID) funded International Growth Centre, helps to push research income over the £30m mark for the first time. A further £1.1m research income generated by the School's subsidiary, LSE Enterprise Ltd, takes the consolidated group income to £31.5m.

The School continues its success under the Horizon 2020 and other European Commission programmes. Eighteen new awards with a contract value of £10.6m commenced during the year.

The Centre for Economic Performance, funded by the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) since 1990, has secured continuation funding for a further five years to October 2020.

The introduction of FRS102 has a relatively small impact on the reporting of research grant income, with the 2014-15 accounts being restated from £27.1m to £26.4m.

Funding for research will be a particular focus for the coming year as we continue to assess the implications of the EU referendum. Although the Treasury's commitment to underwrite awards is welcome news, at least in the short term, we are lobbying for the UK government to support science and research in its Brexit negotiations.

Our success rate in converting research applications continues to exceed 24 per cent.

Other income

The School derives significant value from its academic reputation and resources, through additional activities such as the operation of student residences, catering and consultancy activities (table 6). As well as attracting staff and students, these activities make a valuable contribution to the financial health to the School, contributing over a fifth of the School's income. The lower than inflation increase in residence and catering income reflects the impact of closing part of the campus during the Centre Building redevelopment and timing differences between each year's Summer School revenue. Other Services Rendered income fell following the cessation of a business stream and the one-off financial returns generated in 2014-15.

Residence and catering

With over 4,000 bed spaces in 12 halls of residence and in University of London halls, the School is able to offer a guaranteed place to all first year undergraduate students and accommodate 41 per cent of all full time students. Unlike the numerous commercial providers of student accommodation in London, we can offer 31 week contracts to undergraduate students making our residences far more affordable. We are able to do this by generating income from operating many of our halls on a commercial basis during vacation periods.

The offer of affordable accommodation to our students is central to our recruitment strategy and, through a partnership with Urbanest we provided 484 additional beds at Westminster Bridge from September 2015. We aim to add more places in the coming years through a combination of partnership agreements and, where affordable, developing our own halls.

LSE Enterprise Limited

The School is keen to apply the social science expertise of LSE academics to researching and resolving issues across as wide a range of policy, social and business areas as possible, and where appropriate to do this on a commercial basis. During 2015-16 £1.5m was paid to the School through Gift Aid, £0.8m as a contribution to the School's general reserves and £0.7m earmarked for further investment in academic research.

The International Growth Centre

Other Income includes £10.4m (2014-15 – £6.3m) related to the School's International Growth Centre (IGC) partnership with the DfID. This partnership promotes sustainable growth in developing countries by providing demand-led policy advice and research. In total the £51m investment by DfID over four years has enabled the School to establish 15 in-country programmes in 14 countries (Bangladesh, Ethiopia, Ghana, India (Bihar state and Central), Liberia, Mozambique, Myanmar, Pakistan, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, South Sudan, Uganda, Tanzania and Zambia) as well as 10 research programmes spanning topics such as trade, agriculture, macroeconomics and human capital.

Summer Schools

Amongst the most successful of our non-traditional educational activities is our London Summer School Programme, which once again saw increased numbers

Report of the Directors

this year. We now run three sessions, each of three weeks' duration, in June, July and August. With 6,143 students attending this year, it is the largest university summer school in the UK and is enormously diverse. The LSE Summer School means that the campus remains intensively used during the summer, with strong demand for rooms in our residences. In addition to this, a separate Executive School attracted 284 students.

Two overseas schools also operated during 2015-16, in Beijing and Cape Town, with 373 students attending.

International Programme

Under a collaboration agreement, the School participates in the University of London International Programme, which sees our academic material taught under the University of London badge to over 20,000 students around the globe annually. This study leads to the award of a University of London degree via distance learning. The School plays a key role in the direction and quality assurance processes of the programmes in which it is involved.

Investment Income

Investment income comprises investment returns from: working capital cash balances held on deposit; coupons from the bond portfolios we hold to fund our capital development programme and our short-term endowment commitments; and dividends from equity investments held for long-term growth. The School adopts a "total return" approach to the investment of its long-term funds, so a significant proportion of returns are unrealised and reported as Gains on Investment in the Statement of Comprehensive Income and Expenditure. The bonds in our capital development portfolio will be held to maturity, so are not reported at their market value at the balance sheet date.

Investment performance continues to deliver excellent results despite significant market volatility during 2015-16. In 2015-16 the Growth Portfolio unit price appreciated 9.8 per cent and, when combined with our Gift-matching (shorter term investment duration) portfolio achieved a 9.1 per cent return. Over five years the Growth Portfolio has returned 8.0 per cent per annum.

Endowment and donations received in 2015-16

The presentation of philanthropic gifts to the School in the financial statements can be difficult to follow, though a little less so with adoption of the 2015 SORP. In summary, endowments and grants are recognised in the SOCI as they are received unless they relate to a capital grant, in which case the funds are recorded as deferred income until the project is complete, when the income is reported in the SOCI.

Building on last year's success in securing £30m funding from Paul Marshall to establish the Marshall Institute for Philanthropy and Social Entrepreneurship, this year has seen two more large gifts. The Firoz and Najma Lalji Foundation has given £10m to name and support the Firoz Lalji Centre for Africa; and the Atlantic Philanthropies Foundation has given £64.4m to support the Atlantic Fellows programme, which will train the next generation of leaders seeking to influence and facilitate changes in global policy and practice to enable greater equality, opportunity and outcomes for all. This is the largest ever donation to the School and firmly establishes fundraising as a core component in the financial planning for the School's future.

Report of the Directors

The Marshall gift consists of £10m to fund the Marshall Institute for Philanthropy and Social Entrepreneurship and a £20m contribution to the 44 Lincoln's Inn Field/Paul Marshall Building. As at 31 July 2016, £6m had been received: £2m was recorded (in 2014-15) as income and £4m as deferred income which will be released to income upon completion of 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields.

In addition to these magnificent gifts, 2015-16 was a record year for the School's Annual Fund which, with other fundraising, brought the total cash received in the year to nearly £30m, the highest ever achieved.

Socially Responsible Investment Policy

During 2015-16 the School developed and adopted a new Socially Responsible Investment Policy (SRIP). The School has adopted the six UN Principles for Responsible Investing, recognising that doing so is an effort to better align it as an investor with broader objectives of a better society. Consistent with the LSE Council's statutory fiduciary responsibilities as charity trustees, the School will specifically:

- Avoid direct investments made in tobacco manufacture or indiscriminate armaments and in companies whose business is significantly focused on extraction of thermal coal or tar sands.
- Seek to reduce, as far as possible, investments placed indirectly through investment funds in these companies.

- Explore opportunities to collaborate with other universities to encourage fund managers to develop new socially responsible investment products.

In addition to representing the School's desire to avoid supporting industries which do direct harm through indiscriminate arms and tobacco manufacture, this represents a positive commitment from LSE to support the transition to the low-carbon economy. We are proud of our rigorous and innovative academic contributions on climate change and the environment, and also of our own high environmental standards on campus, and it is right that our investment policy reflects this work. Our investment approach and assets held are set out later in this report.

Expenditure

Total operating expenditure, as defined by the 2015 SORP, increased by 1.3 per cent; however, that overlooks the one-off impact in 2014-15 of the charge related to the USS pension scheme. Without this distortion, total expenditure would have increased by 7.2 per cent, significantly faster than underlying income growth. This is the result of a range of planned investments including hiring additional faculty, investment in the Education Strategy and the creation of a number of inter-disciplinary Institutes and Centres.

Staff costs

An academic institution's most valuable resource is its staff – our salary and related costs to sustain them in 2015-16 were £167.0m and staff costs as a proportion of income rose by 0.7 percentage points to 53.6 per cent.

Year-on-year staff costs increased by 6.2 per cent reflecting 141 (3.4 per cent) additional full time equivalent staff members and 3.2 per cent relating to the annual pay award, automatic pay increments, discretionary pay awards, the impact of the changes in the USS and SAUL pension schemes and national insurance employer contributions.

Pension schemes

LSE staff are eligible to join the Universities Superannuation Scheme (USS) or the Superannuation Arrangements of the University of London (SAUL), depending on the grade of their post and the restrictions imposed by USS.

At their last triennial valuations both schemes reported deficits: USS £5.3bn and SAUL £60m. After extensive consultation USS closed its final salary section for all members with effect from 1 April 2016, introduced a salary cap of £55,000 on defined benefits contributions and increased the employer and employee contribution rates to 18 per cent and 8 per cent respectively. On 1 April 2016 SAUL closed their final salary scheme and now offer an uncapped “career averaged revalued earnings” (CARE) scheme for contribution rates of 16 per cent and 6 per cent for employers and employees respectively.

As the School is contributing to a deficit repayment plan for both schemes, the estimated present value of our commitments to enhanced future contributions are required, under the 2015 SORP, to be recognised in the financial statements. Based on our estimates of future pay costs and a suitable discount factor (see note 18), these provisions are £37.5m and £1.2m at 31 July 2016 for USS and SAUL respectively. This is not the same as the School’s share of the total scheme deficit which, as it is not separately identifiable, does not require disclosure.

Low gilt yields continue to put upward pressure on the valuation of both schemes’ liabilities, further widening the funding gap. The latest estimates suggest USS and SAUL have deficits of £10.0bn and £203m respectively. The next triennial valuation due in March 2017 is likely to lead to further changes to benefits and/or contributions. The School remains committed to the provision of attractive, robust and cost effective pension arrangements for all its staff and will work constructively with all stakeholders to ensure that the School’s contributions do this in the most effective manner possible.

Equity and Diversity

LSE is committed to building a diverse, equitable and truly inclusive university.

Through the implementation of transparent policies, practices and procedures, the School has due regard to our duties under the Equality Act 2010, and to the protected characteristics detailed in the Act. The School seeks to fulfil this commitment by ensuring that our policies, training and development reflect the principles laid down in this statement, as well as our obligations under the law.

The School is committed to embedding and mainstreaming equity, diversity and inclusion. This includes communicating and monitoring policies, procedures and practices, to ensure that all are inclusive and equitable, that the record of the School is understood and evaluated effectively, that information is published and made available, that good practice is shared, that complaints are taken seriously and action is taken, and that new initiatives are proposed and implemented to foster equitable treatment for all at LSE.

This policy is applicable to all students, staff, applicants and visitors. The principles of non-discrimination and equity also apply to the way in which staff and students should treat each other, visitors, contractors, service providers, suppliers, former staff and students and any other persons associated with the functions of the School.

Other operating expenses

Other costs, which include expenditure on academic departments, institutes, subsidiary company activities, student accommodation, bursaries and premises costs, have increased by £9.3m (8.7 per cent) from last year

Report of the Directors

(Table 9). Within that large increase: scholarships, and bursary spend increased by £1.8m (8.6 per cent) to £22.5m; spend on the School's refurbishment programme and investment to reduce carbon emissions increased £2.2m; and the School leased additional space, on a short term basis to accommodate new initiatives such as the interdisciplinary Institutes and to allow for the relocation of staff while the Centre Buildings are redeveloped. These leases will end shortly after the Centre Buildings and 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields projects are completed.

Depreciation

Depreciation over the last five years has grown from 3.4 per cent to 3.6 per cent of total expenditure and is set to increase further over the next five years, reflecting the School's investment in infrastructure and equipment.

Interest payable

Interest payable comprises interest payments on the School's borrowings and, for the first time in 2015-16, an interest charge based on the agreed future contributions relating to pension scheme past service deficits.

Procurement

The School continues to look for savings and value for money opportunities to make the most effective use of its resources. The procurement team have delivered savings of over £3m in each of the last two years (annual savings based on comparison with average tendered, or incumbent supplier charges). In 2014-15 (the most recent available data) the team achieved a procurement influence of 83 per cent against £60.5m of spending which could potentially be influenced by procurement processes.

Our sustainable procurement goal is to procure goods and services in ways that maximise efficiency and effectiveness while minimising social, environmental and other risks.

At the year end the amount due to trade creditors was equivalent to 14 days of purchases from suppliers. Nothing was due to be paid under the Late Payments of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998. The School's policy is to pay agreed invoices in accordance with the agreed terms of payment, which are available on the School's website.

Balance sheet

We are pleased to report continued strength in the School's consolidated balance sheet. Our strategy is to ensure that the balance sheet remains strong to ensure we remain an attractive partner for long-term funding, be it from those offering philanthropic partnership, government grants or financial investors.

We aim to secure an estate and other facilities commensurate with our standing and aspirations. Our ambition is that our estate be judged of good and functionally suitable condition. To this end, we continue to invest significant resource in refurbishment and capital development. Alongside capital developments, the School spends in excess of £6m per annum on long term maintenance across the estate.

During 2015-16, £27.5m was invested in buildings and equipment comprising three significant investments:

- The demolition of the old Centre Buildings and site clearance in preparation for the new building.
- In our Library, the fourth floor was converted into additional student study and work space and on the ground floor an innovative new centre for academic, personal, and professional development – LSE LIFE – has been created.
- The acquisition of a property on the north side of Lincoln's Inn Fields that is now housing the Marshall Institute for Philanthropy and Social Entrepreneurship.

In 2015-16 work began to plan the development of the 44 Lincoln's Inn Fields site. An architectural competition was run under the auspices of the Royal Institute of British Architects and, in April 2016, LSE announced that Dublin based practice Grafton Architects had been selected as winners. This exciting new development for the School will house the departments of Accounting, Finance, Management, their associated research centres and the Marshall Institute for Philanthropy and Social Entrepreneurship FRS 102 permits the “rebasement of property or classes of property to market value on 1 August 2014”. After careful consideration the Finance Committee concluded that, while the market value of the School’s estate is realistically higher than book value, this would not provide the reader with any better understanding of the School or its finances so we will continue to report our fixed assets at their historic cost. The option to adopt a revaluation policy remains available and it will be considered periodically in future.

Report of the Directors

Table 10 – Actual cash inflows and outflows 2015-2016 and forecast cash flows 2016-2018

Cash

The generation of cash to meet current and future obligations as they fall due is the life blood of any well run organisation. Without it, however strong the academic reputation or the quality of its infrastructure, the School will not be financially robust and sustainable and will lack the flexibility to invest in faculty, initiatives and infrastructure. Our strategy is to make our cash balances work hard before they are required to fund our capital plans.

Taxation

The School is an exempt charity within the meaning of the Trustee Investment and Charities Act 2005 and recognised as a charity by HM Revenue and Customs. Commercial trading activities undertaken by the School are operated through its subsidiary companies and attract VAT where applicable. Indirect tax (VAT) and payroll taxes (PAYE and National insurance contributions) collected and paid amounted to £9m and £46m respectively. As we receive £51m from HEFCE Research Councils and government departments, we are a net contributor to HM Treasury.

Risk

Understanding our risks

The School's mission of discovering, advancing and disseminating knowledge to address major socio-economic challenges across the globe will always carry certain risks. Effective risk management increases the likelihood of the successful achievement of the School's strategic objectives, whilst at the same time protecting its reputation and sustainability.

Risk management Processes

The School Management Committee (SMC) monitors and reviews emerging and changing risks throughout the year. Its process are reviewed by Audit Committee, and a termly report is made to Council. The most recent update was approved at Council meeting on 7 June 2016.

The Strategic Risk Register acts as the main tool for the evaluation of risk. The management of each strategic risk is formally assessed by the risk owner at least once each term and reviewed by the SMC, which ensures that the risks are being actively managed, with the appropriate strategies in place. The Strategic Risk Register aligns with the School Strategic Plan 2020.

Each strategic risk (SR) is graded with a level of risk tolerance. Once tolerance has been defined, SMC evaluates what action needs to be taken to address the risk. The School's approach is to minimise its exposure to reputational, compliance and financial risk, while accepting and encouraging an increased degree of risk in pursuit of its mission and objectives. It recognises that its tolerance for risk varies according to the activity undertaken.

Professional service area risk registers ensure key operational risks are identified and managed at the appropriate level within the organisation. High-profile operational risks are monitored by SMC in the central Operational Risk Register. Internal Audit undertakes reviews of key areas throughout the year which are reported to the School's Audit Committee. Academic Risks are monitored through the School's Annual Monitoring exercise.

All major projects have individual risk registers and risk assessment is incorporated into planning and decision-making processes. Risk assessment training and awareness is promoted through the management structure by the Risk Manager.

Strategic Risks

The result of the vote on the United Kingdom's position in the European Union on 23 June 2016 (Brexit) presents both risks and opportunities to the School's strategic aims. With its potential to restrict the freedom of movement of EU students and staff, not to mention the impact on access to funding and legislative structures, there is no doubt that Brexit could change the entire environment in which the School operates. The persistence of uncertainty will doubtless bring short and medium term challenges, but it is clear that the School will need to take a strategic view of the threats and opportunities in order to generate positive longer term outcomes. The Directorate continues to co-ordinate work on the immediate impact of Brexit across the full range of the School's activities, considering the implications for; student and staff recruitment and retention in 2016-17 and 2017-18; research grant applications in development and awards held for EU funded research projects; capital projects underway and short-term philanthropic giving.

In this context, the School's Strategic Risk Register explores risks to its business model under three main headings: Recruitment, Business Model and Research.

Recruitment

- SR1: That fewer high quality students choose LSE because of educational factors.
- SR2: That fewer high quality students choose LSE because of competitive and related factors.
- SR3: That the School lacks consistency in innovating and monitoring the academic portfolio.

The School remains mindful that student dissatisfaction with teaching quality and educational experience may affect the long term perception of the value of a School degree in terms of employability and relevance. Other internal factors, such as established structures for programme allocation, may affect the School's income from student fees.

The international profile of its student body means that the School monitors issues such as the UK Border Agency's student visa policy, and the way political language around immigration might foment a hostile environment to foreign staff and students, particularly following on from Brexit, as external factors which may deter some students from applying to study in the UK. An over-reliance on key markets may also make the School vulnerable to developments by global competitors, or geo-political events.

Business model

- SR4: That the School fails to generate enough revenue from other activities to support academic excellence or innovation.
- SR5: That the School is unable to offset increases in costs with sufficient revenue growth to keep up with better funded competitors, further loss of public funding, and spiralling costs (eg, pensions).

The School is aware of increasingly strong competition facing its ancillary programmes, both in the UK and abroad, and the emergence of private providers remains an issue that will need to be monitored carefully in the coming years. The drive to diversify revenue away from student fees has also led to an increased focus on philanthropic development.

School employees participate in two pension schemes, USS and SAUL. While some steps have been taken by trustees to improve the long-term sustainability of these schemes, concerns remain about their long term sustainability.

In terms of Brexit, the respective Project Boards for the Centre Buildings Redevelopment and 44 LIF projects continue to closely monitor the potential and real implications on budgeted costs and other related risks. Research

- SR6: That the School's research quality, reputation and impact decline. The cuts to research grants and public funding, and LSE's ranking in the REF exercise refer.
- SR7: That the School fails to maintain the academic quality of LSE faculty.

The School continues to face serious competition to recruit and retain its best faculty. The challenge remains to ensure that an effective reward policy is developed to attract new talent and retain existing faculty while ensuring long-term affordability. The establishment of REF Strategy Committee as a standing committee of the School allows long term planning and control of research issues, while the School continues with its rigorous approach to research mentoring and appraisal. The continuing work on support and incentives for externally funded research also mitigates these risks.

In terms of the impact of Brexit on research, the School still benefits from EU funding until the UK leaves the EU and the UK government has agreed to underwrite any existing funding that might otherwise have been jeopardised in the exit process. The School will aim to increase grant applications to UK research councils, as well as increase efforts to gain funding from foundations and other philanthropic sources. The Russell Group has identified that its overall priority is to secure full associated country status for the UK participation in EU programmes. Eleven non-EU states, including Iceland and Norway, participate in Horizon 2020 on the same basis as Member States, and funding under the programme is available globally.

The School will continue to monitor the impact of the impending Brexit on staff recruitment, both in terms of any likely visa changes and the effects of the tone of the debate on immigration. Irrespective of the funding environment, a serious risk to the School is of a "talent drain" of academic staff. Any strategy for research must address this risk at its core, as the loss of key staff could affect the standing of the School relative to other research institutions.

Public benefit

In this section we set out some of the many ways in which the School delivers public benefit. The objectives of the School are set out in our Memorandum and Articles of Association. The public benefit objectives include education and research, but the School's ambitions go significantly beyond the intrinsic benefits of those activities. Since its foundation, LSE has sought to apply teaching and research to improve society, and that goal remains unchanged today, except that the School's global reach is greater than ever.

Our beneficiaries

The beneficiaries of LSE activities include students who benefit from their education at LSE, academia as a whole which benefits from research, and broader society which benefits from both, with well-educated graduates contributing to academia, the professions, public service, commerce and industry, and society in many fields and our research influencing public policy for the good of society.

Widening participation and raising aspiration

At LSE we believe that all school and college students should have the opportunity to go on to higher education regardless of their background, and that it is our social responsibility to encourage and support them in exploring their options and making decisions about their future. We have always sought to recruit the best students, irrespective of socio-economic background, though we recognise that limited endowment funding constrains our ability to offer "needs blind" admission to students.

LSE works with schools and colleges in the UK and offers a range of activities aimed at students, their teachers / advisors, and adult learners. These programmes are free for schools and colleges, being fully funded by LSE and through the generous support of private donors. These initiatives include the following:

Visits to schools and colleges – LSE works with schools and colleges in order to provide bespoke sessions to raise awareness of higher education, to raise aspirations and motivate students. Popular topics include: thinking about and choosing your university; the UCAS application process; student finance and budgeting; student life; applying to and studying at LSE; and personal statement workshops.

LSE Choice – LSE's flagship widening participation enrichment programme for students in Years 12 and

Report of the Directors

13. Held at LSE's Campus, this programme works intensively with a cohort of up to 180 students each year to provide stretching academic input and the tools for successful application to LSE and other Russell Group universities.

Moving On – aims to ease students' transition from primary to secondary school by showing that change happens throughout life and can be a positive experience. It also serves as an opportunity to familiarise young people with higher education. It includes activities to promote independence and resilience, takes in a campus tour and culminates in a "graduation ceremony".

Student tutoring – LSE students work in schools, under the supervision of teachers, to help students with their academic work. Tutoring usually involves LSE students tutoring for approximately an hour per week at a school or college for a nine-week period, working with students on a one-to-one or small group basis. The scheme benefits both the school children (in Years 6 to 12) and our undergraduate and postgraduate students who gain important work experience and take part in a valuable community programme.

Other examples of our outreach work with schools and colleges, most of which are supported by current LSE students working with staff, include:

- The LSE Mentoring Scheme – aims inter alia to help mentees to improve their performance in key stage assessments and at GCSE and A Level.
- Introduction to Social Sciences – a one-day programme aimed at Year 10-12 students to support their A Level and university choices.
- Promoting Potential – the Programme, comprising a three-day Spring School and two further top-up days, provides opportunities for African-Caribbean boys from state secondary schools to explore the range of subjects available to them at university. The programme also supports participants further development of key skills including research, networking and debating.
- The Black Achievement Conference – held during Black History Month, this event for students in Years 10-12 and their parents/carers highlights the positive achievements in the black community. It focuses on inspiring children to "aim high" and make informed choices to reach their potential when planning for their future.

- Preparing for a College Education (ACE) and ACE High Days.
- Year 11 Summer School – a social sciences Summer School providing students with the opportunity to experience some of the subjects available at LSE including Economics, History, Sociology, Government and Law.
- Pathways to Law (London), delivered in partnership with University College London, The Legal Education Foundation (formerly The College of Law) and The Sutton Trust.
- Alison Wetherfield Law Programme – this law programme comprises specialist law master classes and a national conference for students in Years 12 and 13.
- The Politics Conference
- BSc Management Taster Day
- Student shadowing
- Open days
- Public lectures
- Advising the Advisors Conference (information and guidance for teachers).
- Routes into Languages
- LSE FOCUS – a newsletter for schools and colleges.
- Email an Alum – first-hand advice from graduates on what to expect at LSE and where an LSE education might lead.

Financial support

LSE is committed to ensuring that students from all social and economic backgrounds continue to apply to the School and that no-one is deterred from doing so because of financial considerations. Tuition fees are top-sliced to provide a generous scholarships budget with schemes in place to fund undergraduates and postgraduates. The School's Access Agreement for 2016 continues to build on past success, committing half of the additional fee income created by the introduction of variable fees (for UK and other EU undergraduates) in 2006, to be used for undergraduate bursaries, outreach and on-course support. The bursaries are available for all students in receipt of a full or partial means tested maintenance loan and do not have to be repaid.

Overseas undergraduates and taught postgraduates from all backgrounds are able to access additional School schemes, which provide awards with a range of values assessed on need. There is a separate extensive scheme for PhD students. In addition, the School has a range of scholarships, funded by external donors and foundations, which again support study at all levels. On-course financial help is available, in the form of the School's Student Support Fund. This fund was spent in full in 2015-16, owing to the School's ongoing commitment to support PhD students in their writing-up period, and to its deployment in cases previously served by the Government's Access to Learning Scheme.

Public Events

The School's location in central London and our close links with Westminster, Whitehall and the City help to maintain our reputation as the place where the world comes to debate. Everyone is welcome to attend LSE's public events, where some of the most influential figures in the social sciences and public life can be heard. LSE's Public Events programme includes lectures, debates, discussions and concerts. In order to maximise the opportunity for those outside London and overseas to benefit from the programme, many were also made available online by video or podcast, with debate being sustained through social networking and syndication via channels such as Twitter, Facebook, RSS, iTunes, Soundcloud, Mixcloud, YouTube, etc.

In 2015-16, there were 11.9 million views of the School's rich media offerings via video and audio podcast.

Arts and LSE's 120th anniversary

LSE has an open campus in the heart of London, generously furnished with an interesting range of sculptures and installations for all to enjoy. The works continue to be accessible to the public through their inclusion in StatueFindr, an app providing a guide to public works of art in Westminster. The School provides a range of other art and entertainment programmes which are free of charge and open to all. These include exhibitions, music concerts, online photographic galleries, and our popular annual "Space for Thought" Literary Festival. This year's theme was Utopias and speakers included Robert Harris, Professor A C Grayling, David Aaronovitch and Anna Pavord. Events for children featured the Moomins and Alice in Wonderland.

LSE opened its doors to students for the first time on 10 October 1895. The LSE 120th anniversary programme sought to raise awareness of the School's history and heritage among students, staff, alumni and the general public. The programme included a history timeline and in-depth history blogs, widely shared on social media, a pop up exhibition and the introduction of a campus history tour. LSE was also the subject of a BBC Proms interval talk in September 2015.

The extensive Centre Buildings project provided an opportunity to discover what lies beneath the LSE. The excavation was carried out by Archaeology South-East / CAA based at UCL and was an opportunity to find out more about the peripheral areas of Saxon Lundenwic. The dig uncovered 2,000 pieces of pottery; over 8,000 pieces of animal bone and approximately 3,000 fragments of Roman and Saxon building material from around 1,000 archaeological features. Assessment will take place in the coming year but initial assessments indicate evidence for three main periods of activity; the Middle – Late Saxon period (c 700-1000 AD); the medieval period (c 1066-1600) and the post-medieval period (c 1600-1900).

Volunteering

The School has a strong tradition of social awareness and engaging with the wider community. LSE supports such efforts through its dedicated Volunteer Centre. In 2015-16, the Centre saw a huge amount of interest from students who wanted to get involved in volunteering and our research shows that over 37 per cent of them do during their time at LSE, including 48 per cent of LSE undergraduates. We had almost 800 students attend our two volunteering fairs.

LSE students complete a wide range of roles including mentoring, campaigning, fundraising, marketing, research and many more. The Volunteer Centre has worked with over 400 charities this year to help them recruit volunteers, invited over 80 charities onto campus for volunteering fairs, panels and other events and hosted an event to celebrate the commitment of LSE students to volunteering and fundraising.

Students' feedback indicates that when they volunteer their skills improve, it improves their LSE experience, they are more likely to feel part of the university, and more likely to feel that they are making a difference in their communities. We are proud to be making a difference, both to the students and to those reached by their volunteering.

Library

LSE Library is one of the largest social sciences libraries in Europe, with designated status from Arts Council England, and unusually amongst university libraries it is open to members of the public who need to use its collections. Since opening the new exhibitions gallery in May 2015 at the entrance to the building the Library has curated four exhibitions, including "Women, Peace, and Security" and "Charles Booth's London: mapping Victorian lives". Each exhibition has been open to the public, free of charge and has been accompanied by a range of lectures as part of the LSE public lecture series attended by over 600 people.

We have also loaned items from the collections for exhibitions at other institutions including one of the suffrage banners titled "Dare to be Free" to the Whitworth Gallery, Manchester; over 20 items from our Kibbo Kift archives to the Whitechapel Art Gallery, London; and a notebook from the Booth collection to the Museum of Childhood, London.

The Library has developed an education and outreach programme to build on our existing work with schools and community groups. Activities have included facilitated archival research and A-level course work support, "History of Feminism" GCSE handling and debate workshops, and introductions to the Women's Library. So far we have provided enriching learning experiences for over 600 secondary school students and nearly 200 adult learners. We have continued to support LSE's Widening Participation programmes, hosting visits, tours and training for hundreds of school-aged students interested in pursuing higher education.

Research

The School prides itself on a policy of engagement and the provision of research which seeks to address the burning issues of the day and influence public policy. The work of many of our research centres and academic departments has direct relevance to our charitable aims and the delivery of public benefit. A few examples include the following:

- The prevention and relief of poverty: the International Growth Centre, the Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion, the Centre for Economic Performance, and the Department for International Development.
- The advancement of health or the saving of lives: LSE Health and Social Care, and the Centre for Human Rights.

The advancement of citizenship or community development: LSE Cities, the Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion, the Marshall Institute for Philanthropy and Social Entrepreneurship, the International Inequalities Institute and the What Works Centre for Local Economic Development.

The advancement of human rights, conflict resolution or reconciliation or the promotion of religious or racial harmony or equality and diversity: the Centre for Human Rights; Diplomacy and Strategy (IDEAS); the Department of International Relations, the Department of Government, the Gender Institute, the Crisis States Research Network, the Middle East Research Centre, and the Centre for Women, Peace and Security.

The advancement of environmental protection or improvement: Grantham Research Centre, Centre for Climate Change Economics and Policy, Department of Geography and the Environment.

The relief of those in need, by reason of youth, age, ill health, disability, financial hardship or other disadvantage: the Centre for the Analysis of Social Exclusion, LSE Health and Social Care, the Department of International Development, the International Growth Centre, the Centre for Economic Performance, and the Suntory and Toyota International Centre for Economics and Related Disciplines.

Research that has hit the headlines in the past year includes:

- World-first study by Dr Sara Evans-Lacko revealing that workplace depression is a major global issue, costing countries and companies billions of dollars;

Report of the Directors

- Research by LSE's Department of Management showing that home working loses its appeal for both companies and staff over time as it becomes the "norm" rather than the "exception";
- Dr Grace Lordan's paper on regular brisk walking being the best exercise to keep weight down, compared to other forms of exercise;
- Professor Emily Jackson's HEIF project in which a fictional beauty brand called Timeless in a "pop-up" shop in London's Old Street Station engaged women with the issue of how social egg freezing might impact work, relationships and society;
- Paper from Professor Walter Holland (LSE Health and Social Care) on routine NHS health checks wasting money;
- Dr Leo Cheliotis's paper on migration which revealed that Greek border controls allowed migrants to bypass them and may have been part of a deliberate policy to boost domestic economies and garner party-political support;
- LSE Gender Commission report which called for radical change to make significant progress in closing the inequality gap;
- LSE's International Inequalities Institute study showing that women make up a smaller and smaller fraction of those with high incomes, the closer you get to the top;
- LSE research from Dr Rosalind Arden proving that dogs – like people – have measurable IQs and their intelligence can be tested;
- Professor Michael Murphy's research showing that different levels of migration have not led to different rates of population ageing within the UK population;
- LSE London report showing that buy-to-let tax changes will push up the rents of sitting tenants;
- Department of Sociology report showing there are relatively few working class actors and that they earn less than their middle class equivalents because of a "class ceiling".

Thank you

We would like to thank the many generous donors and sponsors, without whom LSE's public benefit activities would not be sustainable at their current scale. The School is indebted to the enthusiasm and engagement of members of the LSE Council, who receive no remuneration for their services as charity trustees.
