Introduction by the Chief Claims Officer

This, our eleventh annual report, covers an extremely busy year for the Claims branch. Overall cash payments were £85.71 million. Over the same period receipts of £3.401 million were recovered.

There have been a number of reports in the media comparing the level of common law compensation claims with payments made to Service personnel under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme (AFCS). Such reports often, mistakenly, conclude that the payments awarded under the AFCS are directly comparable with common law awards. This is simply wrong and I would therefore like to take this opportunity to address this issue.

The AFCS is a no-fault scheme. Claimants do not have to go to court or engage a lawyer and there is no requirement to prove negligence in order to receive an award. Awards consist of a tariff-based lump sum for injury, and, for more serious injury, an additional index-linked tax-free uncapped Guaranteed Income Payment (GIP) paid monthly for life to reflect the impact of the injury on future earnings capacity. The GIP has the potential, over a lifetime, to amount to hundreds of thousands of pounds. Unfortunately very few media reports make mention of the GIP, but tend to focus on the lump sum payment. Another important point is that Service personnel have the right to separately pursue a common law compensation claim should they consider that their injury was the result of Ministry of Defence negligence.

By contrast a common law claim is only paid where, on the balance of probabilities, the injury or loss was the result of negligence on the part of the Ministry of Defence. Such awards include compensation for pain, suffering and loss of amenity, together with past and future loss of earnings, loss of pension and future care. Associated legal costs are also paid to successful claimants.

The firm aim is to ensure that our personnel receive the right amount of compensation as expeditiously as possible.

Two very large Group Actions, brought by the Nuclear Test veterans and the Porton Down veterans, are well underway. Indeed, claims brought by the first tranche of 360 Porton Down veterans for illnesses, allegedly arising from non-therapeutic human experimentation, were resolved by way of mediation at which the Ministry of Defence agreed to pay £3 million to the entire group and to make an apology by way of a Written Ministerial Statement. Claims from a second tranche of veterans are now under consideration.

The new Incident Recording Information System (IRIS) was introduced at the end of 2007. IRIS will replace the numerous incident recording systems used throughout the Ministry of Defence, as well as the claims handling database, with a single 'cradle-to-grave' system which will incorporate both incident reporting, electronic scanning of documents and a claims handling facility. However, the full range of benefits will not be realised unless the IRIS database is widely used and therefore it is in the interest of all Ministry of Defence employees that accidents are reported promptly and accurately; only then can the Department take the appropriate action to prevent recurrence of incidents giving rise to injuries and claims.

In addition to providing an overview of our activities, my overriding objective in publishing the Claims Annual Report is to heighten awareness of the importance of sound risk management and our duty to safeguard one another when practicable and reasonable to do so. Not only will this reduce the number of incidents that give rise to expensive compensation claims, it will also reduce the less quantifiable indirect or hidden costs of incidents such as the loss of key personnel and equipment.

I should like to thank all those who assist Claims Branch in helping to establish the facts of the many incidents that give rise to compensation claims and to those who help us formulate our defences or offers of compensation.

Lastly, I should mention that as part of streamlining the Directorate of Safety & Claims will undergo major restructuring and with effect from 3 November 2008 Claims Branch will become a stand alone Division headed by a 1* and be part of the new 2* Directorate of Business Resilience. This reflects the high profile nature and complexity of the work undertaken by Claims; the new title will be Common Law Claims & Policy (CLC&P) which will better describe what we do.

Additional copies of this report are available from CLC&P Focal Point, Zone A, 7th Floor, St George's Court, 2-12 Bloomsbury Way, London WC1A 2SH (Tel: 020 7305 3349/3334, or Fax: 020 7305 4166). Copies can also be found on the Defence Intranet, the Internet or can be supplied on Disk.

Introduction

Organisation

1.1 The Ministry of Defence Claims branch, (DS&C(Claims)), is primarily responsible for processing common-law, non-contractual compensation claims against and on behalf of the Ministry of Defence at home and abroad. It is not responsible for contractual, quasi-contractual, sales or estates matters. It is headed by the Chief Claims Officer (Band B1) and four staff at Band C1. The Chief Claims Officer reports through DS&C and DGS&S to the Personnel Director. Details of the staffing and work of the Claims branch are at Annex A.

Responsibilities

1.2 In addition to being responsible for processing common law compensation claims, DS&C(Claims) also has a number of other important responsibilities such as providing claims policy advice, handling some Service personnel employment tribunal claims, handling claims against foreign forces based in the UK and providing advice on insurance and indemnities. It undertakes a variety of secretariat tasks and during the period of this report dealt with a large number of Parliamentary Questions, Ministerial Correspondence, Treat Official Correspondence and Freedom of Information requests.

1.3 Area Claims Officers (ACOs) and their staff are located in areas where there is a sizeable defence presence – Afghanistan, Cyprus, Iraq, Kosovo, North West Europe, and the South Atlantic Islands. ACOs are accountable to the appropriate Civil Secretary, but have a professional responsibility to the Chief Claims Officer.

Policy and Procedures

1.4 When compensation claims are received they are considered on the basis of whether or not the Ministry of Defence has a legal liability to pay compensation. Where there is a proven legal liability, compensation is paid. To deal with cases on any basis other than legal liability requires difficult subjective judgments to be made that would undoubtedly lead to inconsistency and unfairness.

1.5 The amount of compensation paid is determined by common law principles which, broadly, take account, as appropriate, of an individual's pain and suffering, degree of injury, property losses, past and future financial losses, level of care required. Levels of compensation including these elements can vary greatly depending on an individual's circumstances. Advice is sought where necessary from Treasury Solicitor's Department, and our commercial claims handlers' panel solicitors for cases brought in England and Wales; the Crown Solicitor in Northern Ireland; and Morton Fraser Solicitors, the Department's legal adviser in Scotland. Queen's Counsel and junior barristers are also consulted on high profile or complex cases or where a point of law needs to be explored. The overwhelming majority of cases are settled through amicable negotiation without claimants having to take the Ministry of Defence to court.

Section Two

Public Liability Claims

Claims Public Liability Group

2.1 The majority of claims submitted to the Public Liability Group (PLG) are for personal injury or property damage from members of the public who have either been injured on Ministry of Defence property or have sustained injuries whilst taking part in the various external events run by the three Services e.g. injuries sustained on assault courses.

2.2 Property damage claims usually emanate from personnel working and living in service accommodation who, for example, have had their belongings damaged by the poor maintenance of the properties they occupy.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims received	491	429	705
Number of claims settled	266	256	441
Amount paid	£2.7M	£4.8M	£5.0M

2.3 Included in the number of claims shown in the above table in 2007/08 are claims from 243 ex-Far East Prisoners of War settled for a total of £972,000.

2.4 PLG continues to handle death and serious injury claims from Iraqi and Afghan civilians. Due to the nature and complexity of the claims, their high profile and the fact that two British law firms have been instructed to handle a number of the claims, a decision was taken in 2004 that such claims should be handled by the PLG to ensure that a consistent approach was taken and the claims handled in accordance with the Civil Procedure Rules. Less serious injury claims (e.g. those resulting from RTAs) and property damage claims continue to be handled locally by the ACOs in Basrah and Lashkar Gah.

Public Liability Claims - Northern Ireland

2.5 On 1 April 2007 DS&C(Claims) assumed responsibility for all public liability claims (including low flying) emanating from Northern Ireland. These are now included in the statistics given at paragraphs 2.2 and 2.11.

Maritime Claims

2.6 Maritime claims by and against the Ministry of Defence result mainly from collisions, oil spillage, gunnery/missile firing incidents, damage to static property, wash damage, fishing gear damage and the salvage and recovery of Ministry of Defence property. Maritime law is complex and much of the legislation dealing with the law of the sea was enacted more than one hundred years ago.

2.7 The Ministry of Defence provides assistance to ships in distress in UK waters and regularly helps in other parts of the world. If as the result of the assistance given a vessel is salvaged, the Department is entitled to claim salvage based on the value of the ship and its cargo. Part of the amount in salvage is paid to the crew of the assisting ship or aircraft in accordance with the Merchant Shipping Act 1864. It is Ministry of Defence policy not to claim salvage when life saving has been the main aim of the assistance given. Although uncommon, salvage claims by members of the public for the successful recovery of our property can likewise be made against the Department. The figures for salvage claims reflect the net effect of salvage claims paid by Ministry of Defence and a successful recovery.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of maritime recovery and salvage claims initiated by MOD	1	5	4
Number of maritime recovery and salvage claims settled	1	1	1
Amount recovered	£4M	£23,281	£115,676

NB: The large sum recovered in financial year 2005/06 was as a result of a collision between a cross-channel ferry and HMS St Albans, a Type 23 frigate.

2.8 In addition to the work undertaken by Claims branch, Flag Officer Scotland, Northern England and Northern Ireland (FOSNNI) and Flag Officer Sea Training (FOST) have delegated authority to settle claims of up to £8,000 per fishing gear claim, £5,000 per collision claim and £1,000 per oil spillage claim.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims settled by FOSNNI	25	33	14
Amount paid by FOSNNI	£27,000	£53,000	£29,000

Total amount paid	£42,000	£103,000	£41,000

Low Flying Military Aircraft Claims

2.9 The activities of low flying military aircraft can give rise to claims for compensation from members of the public. The most common claims are those involving injury to, or death of, livestock and/or damage to property although claims are sometimes received for personal injury. Many of the claims are for relatively small amounts. Such claims are handled on an ex-gratia basis, but are investigated in the same way as if the principles of common law legal liability applied. The foundation of this approach is the Royal Prerogative, which gives an absolute right for all military flying activity, and, therefore, an injured party has no legal rights of redress for compensation. Lord Drumalbyn set out this approach in a Lords Written Answer on 22 November 1971 (Official Report Column 888):

"... No remedies exist in law against any military aircraft flying by virtue of the Royal Prerogative for the purpose of the defence of the Realm or of training or of maintaining the efficiency of the Armed Forces of the Crown. The ... Ministry of Defence will, however, pay compensation on an ex gratia basis if satisfied that the damage has been caused by a military aircraft."

2.10 A procedure has been in place since 1994, following consultation with various farming unions and landowners' associations, for dealing with claims relating to death or injury to livestock. The procedure was most recently updated in December 1999 after a round of consultations with the NFU, Country Landowners' Association and other similar bodies. In accordance with the Livestock and Animal Compensation Claims Guidance the claimant should report the incident promptly, provide veterinary evidence and a fully quantified claim.

2.11 Unfortunately, this is a category of work that requires careful monitoring to identify potentially fraudulent claims. Cases are referred to the Ministry of Defence Police if the evidence indicates there is a potential problem.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims received	171	175	244
Number of claims settled	124	126	141
Amount paid	£4.10M	£0.86M	£1.93M

Visiting Forces Claims

2.12 PLG handles third party claims by and against Visiting Forces based in or visiting the United Kingdom under the provisions of Article VIII of the NATO Status of Forces Agreement (SOFA) and Section 9 of the Visiting Forces Act 1952. Such claims could be on behalf of any of the states who are signatories to the agreement or who are invited to train in the UK, but primarily involve the USA, the Netherlands, Belgium and Germany. Claims are investigated and handled in exactly the same way as if British Forces were involved and, if satisfied that the Visiting Force is liable, the Ministry of Defence pays compensation on its behalf. In the case of NATO countries, the Sending State is billed for 75% of the amount paid, the United Kingdom paying the other 25%.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of visiting forces claims received	59	87	58
Number of visiting forces claims settled	59	59	41
Compensation paid	£463,763	£895,755	£677,269

Visiting Forces claims can be categorised as follows:

2007/08	Property Damage	Personal Injury	Low Flying	RTAs	Misc	Total
Claims Received	3	17	4	34	0	58
Claims Settled	1	13	5	22	0	41
Amount Paid	£7,348	£404,258	£10,136	£20,527	£235,000*	£677,269
MOD Contribution	£1,837	£101,065	£2,534	£5,132	£58,750	£169,318

* interim payment

Financial Recoveries

2.13 Where the Ministry of Defence sustains loss or damage to equipment, or property, which has been caused by a third party, PLG will seek to recover those losses from the third party. The main causes for taking action against third parties are occasions where Ministry of Defence static property has been damaged by vehicles, fire, water or the negligence of a contractor.

2.14 Less often, PLG will seek to recover compensation from third parties overseas following road traffic accidents and will also assist visiting forces to make recoveries in the UK if requested to do so.

2.15 The number of recoveries processed by PLG in each of the last three financial years is shown in the table below. One large recovery of nearly £93,000 was made this year from a company whose heavy goods vehicle damaged a footbridge owned by the Ministry of Defence.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims notified	18	18	9
Number of successful recoveries	15	13	10
Amount recovered	£143,483	£60,591	£120,854

Section Three

Service Personnel Employer's Liability Claims

3.1 Prior to 1948, it was not possible for any individual to sue the Crown. This was because of the long held principle that “the Crown could do no wrong”. However, in 1947, legislation was passed enabling the Crown to be sued for acts of negligence. Section 10 of that legislation, The Crown Proceedings Act 1947, prevented Service personnel who were on duty or on any land, premises, ship, etc. being used for the purposes of the Armed Forces, from suing for compensation. This position remained until 15 May 1987 when The Crown Proceedings (Armed Forces) Act 1987 repealed Section 10 of The Crown Proceedings Act 1947. Since then Service personnel have, like any other employee, been entitled to sue the Ministry of Defence for compensation where they have suffered as a result of the Department's negligence. The repeal of Section 10 was not made retrospective.

3.2 At the time of the passage of the 1987 Bill, the question of retrospection was debated and motions to allow members of the Armed Forces, past and present, to pursue claims for injury or death suffered in incidents since 1947, were mooted. They were however defeated or withdrawn. The view that prevailed at the time was that there would have been no logical point at which to draw a line, short of trying to cover all incidents and all types of injury going back to 1947 and that to make the Act retrospective would create many new examples of unfairness and injustice.

3.3 Mr Matthews, an ex-serviceman suffering from an asbestos related disease, challenged this position on the basis that Section 10 of the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 is incompatible with the European Convention of Human Rights. Mr Matthews alleged a breach of Article 2 (right to life) and Article 6 (due process rights) of the Human Rights Act. The case under Article 2 was that by exposing him to asbestos dust the Crown was in breach of its obligation to take positive steps to safeguard his health. The case under Article 6 was that Section 10 of the Crown Proceedings Act is a 'blanket' immunity which deprives him of his right of access to the Court. The matter was heard in the High Court in December 2001 and judgment handed down by Mr Justice Keith on 22 January 2002 in favour of the claimant. The Department, however, secured leave to take this matter expeditiously to the Court of Appeal and the hearing took place in April 2002. The Court of Appeal overturned Mr Justice Keith's decision on 29 May 2002, but granted leave for Mr Matthews to take this matter to the House of Lords. Their Lordships considered this matter in January 2003 and handed down a unanimous judgment on 13 February in favour of the Ministry of Defence. The five Law Lords agreed that there had never been the right in national law that Mr Matthews sought to assert i.e. that a member of the Armed Forces could sue the Crown in tort, and that he has no “civil right” that Article 6 of the European Convention on Human Rights can operate to protect.

3.4 The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme, a new compensation package for members of the Armed Forces, became effective on 6 April 2005. The new legislation replaces the previous arrangements under the War Pensions Scheme and is administered and paid by the Service Personnel & Veterans Agency. The scheme covers all Regular (including Gurkhas) and Reserve personnel whose injury, ill health or death is caused by service on or after 6 April 2005. Ex-members of the Armed Forces who served prior to this date, or who are receiving a current War Disablement Pension or War Widows' Pension, are not affected by the new scheme. They will continue to receive their War Pension or War Widows' pension and any associated benefits in the normal way.

3.5 The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme provides modern, fair and simple arrangements and will focus help on the more severely disabled. It will provide compensation for significant injuries, illness and death that are caused by service. It will also cover injury, illness or death that results from warlike incidents or terrorism.

3.6 Under the terms of the Scheme a lump sum is payable to Service or ex-Service personnel based on a 15-level tariff graduated according to the seriousness of the condition. A graduated Guaranteed Income Payment (GIP), payable for life, will also be paid to those who could be expected to experience a significant loss of earning capacity. A GIP can also be paid to surviving partners (including unmarried and same sex partners) where the service person's death was caused by service.

3.7 Royal and Sun Alliance plc handled most personal injury claims from Service and ex-Service personnel on behalf of the Ministry of Defence from 1 July 1996 when they were first awarded a contract. They were re-awarded the contract for a five year period as from 1 May 2002 following a competitive tender exercise. Claims notified before that date, and some more recent claims of a political or sensitive nature, are handled by the Employer's Liability Group within DS&C(Claims). Gallagher Bassett International Limited is the current contract holder, having been awarded a five-year contract to handle Employer's Liability and third party motor claims notified from 1 May 2007.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims received	640	550	603
Number of claims settled	621	889	812
Amount paid	£26.3M	£32.9M	£32.7M

Combat Immunity

3.9 Among the claims being handled in-house are several which relate to service in Afghanistan and Iraq. It is open to the Ministry of Defence to plead a defence of combat immunity in those claims where the injury was sustained engaging the enemy in the course of hostilities. The Court of Appeal handed down this ruling on 21 February 1996 in Mulcahy - v- MOD when it was held:

"One soldier did not owe to another a duty of care in tort when engaging the enemy in the course of hostilities.

Furthermore there was no duty on the Ministry of Defence to maintain a safe system of work in battle conditions. Accordingly, a soldier who was injured in battle conditions did not have a cause of action in negligence against the Ministry."

3.10 The Mulcahy judgment was clear, but this ruling was expanded in Bell & Others -v- MOD (the PTSD High Court group Action) when Owen J ruled:

"Does the immunity apply to anti-terrorist, policing and peace keeping operations of the kind in which British forces were engaged in Northern Ireland and in Bosnia? In my judgment it will apply to operations in which service personnel come under attack or the threat of attack.

[Furthermore] the term combat has an extended meaning in that

a. the immunity is not limited to the presence of the enemy or the occasions when contact with the enemy has been established. It extends to all active operations against the enemy in which service personnel are exposed to attack or the threat of attack. It covers attack and resistance, advance and retreat, pursuit and avoidance, reconnaissance and engagement.

b. the immunity extends to the planning of and preparation for operations in which the armed forces may come under attack or meet armed resistance.

c. the immunity will apply to peace-keeping/policing operations in which service personnel are exposed to attack or the threat of attack".

3.11 In Bici -v- MOD, Elias J narrowed the judgment in Bell & Others by stating:
“But any such threat must in my view be imminent and serious”.

Summary of Group Actions

Nuclear Test Veterans

3.12 Compensation for British Nuclear Test Veterans was the subject of an Adjournment Debate held in Westminster Hall at the Houses of Parliament on 4 December 2002. At the Debate, the then Under Secretary for State, Dr Lewis Moonie, re-stated the Ministry of Defence’s position that there is no scientific or medical evidence which currently shows that the health or other physical problems suffered by the test veterans, or their children or grandchildren could be attributed to participation in the test programme. He did however invite the nuclear test veterans to present any new evidence that supported their case for independent review.

3.13 A third National Radiological Protection Board report carried out independently of the Ministry of Defence report was published in early 2003 and this supported the conclusions reached in the previous reports published in 1988 and 1993 which concluded that overall levels of mortality and cancer incidence in the nuclear weapons tests participants have continued to be similar to those in a matched control group, and for overall mortality to be lower than expected from national rates.

3.14 Two firms of solicitors (Alexander Harris Solicitors, Altrincham and Clark Willmot and Clark Solicitors, Bristol) announced in July 2002 that they had been jointly instructed by British, New Zealand and Fijian nuclear test veterans to act on their behalf in an action against the Ministry of Defence for damages. They secured legal aid from the Legal Services Commission to pursue the matter, but the funding was withdrawn in August 2005. No appeal was made and the two firms of solicitors withdrew from the action.

3.15 The veterans are now represented by Rosenblatt Solicitors. Proceedings were served on 29 December 2006 on behalf of 1,071 veterans. The issue of limitation is to be determined separately from causation. A limitation trial at the Royal Courts of Justice has been set down to begin on 19 January 2009.

Porton Down

3.16 Claims for compensation were received in March 2007 from solicitors representing 360 former volunteers who took part in non-therapeutic human trials at Porton Down. The claimants alleged either short term injury, i.e. those arising immediately after the trial in question, or long term injury, i.e. illnesses that have arisen later in life which they believe are directly due to the trials they participated in.

3.17 The majority of the claims relate to experiments involving nerve agents (including sarin), mustard gas and riot control agents such as CS gas. All the claimants claimed they suffered personal injury resulting from participating in these trials. There were three causes of action which the claimants relied on, namely:

- trespass to the person
- negligence by reason of
 - a failure to obtain consent (to the specific trials)
 - a failure adequately to plan and conduct the experiments
- misstatement.

3.18 The Ministry of Defence stated in 2000 that it would not plead a Limitation Defence (i.e. that the claims should be regarded as out of time by virtue of the Limitation Act 1980) and this concession was confirmed in 2003. This was because much of the evidence to support the claims only came about during the build-up to the second inquest into the death of Ronald Maddison some 50 year's earlier and the compensation claim brought against the Ministry of Defence by his dependants. Furthermore a Defence pursuant to Section 10 of the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 is not open to the Ministry of Defence in this case because the experiments at Porton Down were under the direction and control of civilians rather than Service personnel.

3.19 The Department indicated to the claimants' solicitors in September 2007 that it was willing to explore a settlement by way of mediation and two mediation meetings took place on 21 December 2007 and 11 January 2008.

3.20 As a result of these mediation meetings amicable settlement was reached in respect of these claims. The settlement was made without admission of liability by the Ministry of Defence and involved the global payment of £3M in full and final settlement of all claims made by the group, together with an apology by the Department; USofS made a written statement in the House of Commons on 31 January 2008. In addition, as is normal practice, the Ministry of Defence agreed to meet the claimants' reasonable legal costs in connection with these claims.

3.21 The claimants' solicitors commented that the settlement represented a very fair deal for the claimants and welcomed the constructive approach by the Ministry of Defence in reaching the settlement.

3.22 Details of compensation payments made in relation to Porton Down claims over the past three years are shown below.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of Claims Settled	3	4	360
Compensation Paid (including legal costs)	£10,000	£142,300	£4,700,000

3.23 Following settlement of the Group Action claims, additional veterans, not part of the original Group Action, came forward seeking compensation. The Ministry of Defence recognised that more veterans, some of whom decided against joining the Group Action, might come forward. This is despite being assured by the claimants' solicitors that the Group Action had been well publicised and that those who remained in the group had been carefully selected on the basis that each had a meritorious claim for personal injury said to have been caused by exposure to a specific chemical warfare or treatment agent which was supported by expert evidence. It must be remembered that the Ministry of Defence did not compensate individuals for attendance at Porton Down.

3.24 Against this background, the Ministry of Defence decided that it would consider any additional meritorious claims that were made on or before 30 June 2008; after that date, the Ministry of Defence reserves the right to plead a defence based on the provisions of the Limitation Act 1980.

3.25 Any veterans now considering pursuing a claim for compensation are being advised to seek advice to establish whether they have a reasonable claim against the Department, by contacting the solicitors involved in the Group Action who have considerable experience already in handling such cases.

Gulf War Claims

3.26 The Ministry of Defence accepts that some veterans of the 1990/1991 Gulf Conflict have become ill and that many believe that this ill-health is unusual and directly related to their participation in the conflict.

3.27 Over a number of years the Ministry of Defence has received approximately 2,000 notifications of "intentions to claim" from Gulf War Veterans or their dependants, but as yet no writs have been served or claims made of sufficient detail for the Department to be able to start considering these claims.

3.28 Gulf War veterans can, and do, receive compensation in the form of war pensions and attributable armed forces pensions.

Radiation Compensation Scheme

3.29 The Ministry of Defence is a member of the nuclear industry's Compensation Scheme for Radiation Linked Diseases. This is a no-fault scheme where there is no requirement for claimants to prove negligence on the part of the Department in order to receive compensation. The Scheme, which the Ministry of Defence joined in 1994, was set up and is run jointly, by the participating employers and Trade Unions and does not affect a claimant's right to seek legal redress.

3.30 The Scheme provides for the assessment of a case, on an agreed technical basis, in order to determine the probability that a cancer contracted by a worker could have been caused by occupational radiation exposure. The amount of compensation payable in a successful case is determined by negotiation between the solicitors representing the parties based upon the same guidelines that would apply if the case had proceeded to Court.

3.31 The Scheme provides for payments to be made for lower levels of causation probability than would be allowed by the Courts. In addition the Scheme provides "full" payment of compensation at a level of 50% causation probability and lesser payments down to a level of 20% causation probability. In this way the assessment of a case recognises that even below the balance of probability there is a chance that exposure to occupational ionising radiation played a role in the disease.

3.32 During financial year 2007/08, the Scheme received 17 new claims from former Ministry of Defence employees (military and civilian) who believe their illness is associated with exposure to occupational ionising radiation. Over the same period no claims were repudiated as failing to meet the minimum 20% causation probability and one claim was settled for £80,000 inclusive of costs.

Asbestos Claims

3.33 Claims from former Service Personnel and civilian employees of the Department are handled by the Department's claims handlers – Gallagher Bassett International Ltd or Royal & Sun Alliance plc.

3.34 Prior to May 1987, Service personnel were prevented by law from pursuing claims for compensation from the Ministry of Defence by Section 10 of The Crown Proceedings Act 1947 (Crown Immunity prevented claims from being made prior to 1947). This point of law applies to all Service personnel and has no bearing on rank, status or place of employment. However, Section 10 was repealed by The Crown Proceedings (Armed Forces) Act 1987. Since the change in the law, which was not made retrospective, Service personnel who suffer loss or injury as a result of negligence by the Ministry of Defence have been entitled to make common law claims for compensation. When compensation claims are submitted, they are considered on the basis of whether or not the Ministry of Defence has a legal liability to pay compensation. Where there is a legal liability to pay compensation we do so.

3.35 In the case of members of the Armed Forces being exposed to asbestos dust and fibre during service before 15 May 1987, they are prevented by law from receiving compensation from the Ministry of Defence. The legal position is that even if an ex-Serviceman only now discovers he has an asbestos related disease, he cannot sue for compensation if exposure was before the repeal of Section 10 of The Crown Proceedings Act 1947. Given that controls over the use of asbestos were introduced in 1970, this is, and will be, the case for the vast majority of ex-Service claimants (the time between exposure to asbestos dust and fibre and the first signs of disease is typically between 15 and 40+ years).

3.36 When Parliament debated the repeal of Section 10, the question of retrospection was considered and motions to allow all past and present members of HM Forces or their dependants to pursue compensation claims for injury or death were moved. They were defeated or withdrawn. The view then, as it is now, was that there is no logical point at which to draw a line, short of trying to cover all types of injury, and this would create more examples of unfairness and injustice. The Government, therefore, has no plans to introduce legislation to allow ex-Service personnel suffering illness or injury before 1987 to be paid common law compensation.

3.37 Compensation in the form of a War Pension is available, however, to all former members of HM Forces suffering from Service attributable illness or injury. War Pensions are paid by the Service Personnel Veterans Agency, are non-discretionary, not means-tested and are made on a no-fault and retrospective basis. They are up-rated annually and are tax free. The Service Personnel Veterans Agency also makes provision for the widows of Service and ex-Service personnel whose death is attributable to service in the form of a War Widows Pension.

3.38 Former civilian employees, who are not bound by the provisions of Section 10 of the Crown Proceedings Act 1947, are, of course, able to pursue common-law claims for compensation. Some Service claimants believe that this is not a fair situation.

3.39 The perceived unfairness and the scope for providing former members of HM Armed Forces with additional help was the subject of an internal review in 2001. The review, demonstrated that compensation by way of war pensions and associated allowances or in common law can be shown to be broadly comparable over time, and that there is no general unfairness in the way in which these claims are handled. As it would be inequitable to treat this group in isolation in terms of common law compensation, thereby creating many examples of unfairness and injustice, ministers decided not to make any changes to the current arrangements.

Section Four

Civilian Staff Employer's Liability Claims

4.1 Since 1982, the Ministry of Defence has contracted out the handling of its civilian employee Employer's Liability claims. Up until 1 May 2002 such claims were handled by AXA Corporate Solution Services Ltd. Royal and Sun Alliance plc then handled civilian Employer's Liability new claims notified up to 30 April 2007. Following a competitive tender exercise Gallagher Bassett International Ltd were awarded a five-year contract to handle all newly notified civilian Employer's Liability claims from 1 May 2007. Many of the claims relate to asbestos related illnesses.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims received	1202	854	924
Number of claims settled	1290	1348	1105
Amount paid	£21.9M	£20.7M	£23.8M

Section Five

Motor Claims

Third Party Motor Claims - UK

5.1 Since 1982 the Ministry of Defence has contracted out the handling of claims made against the Department by other road users. Up to 30 April 2007 the contract was held by AXA Corporate Solutions Services Ltd. However following a further competitive tendering exercise the contract has now been let to Gallagher Bassett International Ltd for a period of five years from 1 May 2007 to 30 April 2012.

5.2 DS&C(Claims) works closely with the Defence Road Safety Officer to reduce the number of road traffic accidents involving Ministry of Defence employees by raising awareness of the financial and human costs of accidents. To this end DS&C(Claims) participates in presentations at the Motor Transport Road Shows organised by the DLO and RAF and attends the Defence Road Transport Regulation Working Group and the Defence Motor Transport Sub-Committee.

5.3 Statistics for motor claims over the last three financial years are shown below:

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims received	2925	2595	2263
Number of claims settled	3645	2972	2084
Amount paid	£6.4M	£6.9M	£7.9M

Third Party Motor Claims - Overseas (not dealt with by ACOs)

5.4 Claims arising from non-UK based vehicles overseas are handled by the appropriate ACO or by PLG, where the geographical area is not covered by one of the ACOs.

5.5 Claims managers are required to establish that an authorised driver was driving the Ministry of Defence vehicle on an authorised journey and route. If these criteria are met and all the evidence suggests that the Ministry of Defence driver was liable for the accident, then compensation will be paid. Statistics for overseas motor claims for the last three financial years are shown in the table below:

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims received	18	25	21
Number of claims settled	23	14	19
Amount paid	£39,026	£17,950	£29,642

Uninsured Loss Recovery

5.6 With effect from 1 May 2007 Gallagher Bassett recovered, on behalf of the Ministry of Defence, the cost of damage caused to its vehicles in accidents which are the fault of a third party. The number of recoveries made by AXA and Gallagher Bassett, and the amounts received are shown below.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of recoveries	139	329	549
Amount Recovered	£166,792	£540,163	£1.6M

Section Six

Clinical Negligence Claims

6.1 The number of clinical negligence claims received over the past twelve months has been higher than those received in the previous two years but remains significantly lower than the level of claims experienced some ten years ago. It is hoped that the Defence Medical Information Capability Programme (DMICP) will improve the standard of medical record keeping and thus lead to fewer incidents of sub-standard medical treatment, thereby giving rise to fewer claims.

6.2 As observed in previous reports, clinical negligence claims can be very time consuming, complex and expensive to settle. Experts in a number of different fields may need to be instructed by both parties to provide advice on liability, causation and quantum; finding suitable experts willing to provide opinions in such cases within fairly short timescales remains an ongoing problem.

6.3 Mediation and counsel-to-counsel settlement conferences have been used successfully to settle several claims. This proves to be a cost effective and speedy way of determining complex clinical negligence claims without recourse to Court proceedings.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims received	69	67	86
Number of claims settled	28	23	16
Amount Paid	£4.5M	£3.0M	£3.7M

6.4 In addition to formal claims received, the Clinical Negligence Team received, and actioned, 52 requests from solicitors for disclosure of medical records, and other documentation, in anticipation of potential clinical negligence claims against the Department.

Section Seven

Service Personnel Employment Tribunal Claims

7.1 As highlighted in previous Claims Annual Reports, the claims budget relating to Employment Tribunal applications brought by current and former members of HM Armed Forces was disaggregated to the respective single Service Personnel branches with effect from 1 April 2003. They now have overall responsibility for handling such claims.

7.2 Any enquiries relating to such cases, or Service Employment Tribunal cases in general should be directed to the respective single Service branches: NP (Sec) Law 2, APC (Litigation) or the RAF Personnel Secretariat.

Homosexual Dismissal Cases

7.3 The Ministry of Defence previously operated a policy, which debarred homosexuals from serving in the Armed Forces. The Department's view was that nothing unlawful was done under domestic law, in terms of the Sex Discrimination Act 1975, or under European law, in terms of the Equal Treatment Directive.

7.4 In 1999 the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR) ruled that in four cases against the Ministry of Defence (Smith, Grady, Beckett and Lustig-Prean v MOD), there had been a violation of those individuals' right to respect for their private life under Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights. It found that there had not been a violation of Article 3; the applicants had not been subjected to inhuman or degrading treatment or torture. Compensation was awarded to each of the four applicants by the ECHR. Compensation has also been paid in a number of additional cases subsequently determined by the ECHR.

7.5 In light of the Court's judgement on 27 September 1999, the Department took legal advice on how to deal with claims from other individuals who had been dismissed. As a result, a decision was taken to enter into settlement negotiations with those who had already submitted Employment Tribunal applications and whose accounts were accepted as factually correct. A number of these claims were subsequently settled quite quickly.

7.6 The bulk of these claims, however, was not settled until financial year 2007/08, following the awards determined by the ECHR. The awards made by the ECHR were, in each and every case, in line with the Ministry of Defence's valuation of these claims, rather than the figures claimed by the applicants.

7.7 Compensation has been paid in full. Apart from one claim which the ECHR has so far failed to rule on all claims of this nature have now been concluded and we do not expect any additional claims to be submitted, or compensation paid. The attached table shows expenditure over the past three years.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Homosexual Dismissal Cases Settled	3	5	57
Compensation Paid	£65K	£234K	£3.7M

Section Eight

Area Claims Officers

Area Claims Office Iraq

8.1 Based at Basrah Air Station alongside HQ Multi National Division (South East), MOD staff manage all third party compensation claims made as a result of British Forces' activities on Op TELIC.

8.2 The number of claims has reduced since Basrah was handed back under Provincial Iraqi Control in 2007. In March 2008, Claims surgeries were reduced from twice a week to once a week due to the lack of claimants; if this trend continues the surgeries might be held once a month.

8.3 The trend of claims in the latter part of this financial year has seen the percentage of RTAs being reduced considerably due to British Forces being confined to the Air Station. Property damage claims are mainly the result of helicopters damaging houses and crops.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Number of claims received	596	689	309
Number of claims settled	393	238	190
Number of claims closed	965	566	434
Amount paid	£653,699	£573,651	£2,303,803
Amount recovered	£1,149	0	0

8.4 The highest claim to be paid in this financial year, £2M, related to an incident in September 2003. Whilst on guard duty and following a foot patrol, a member of HM Forces failed to make safe or unload his weapon. He negligently discharged one round, seriously injuring an Iraqi boy in the stomach. He sustained severe neurological and spinal injuries resulting in a multi-faceted disability with paralysis in the legs, loss of sensation, loss of bladder control, impairment of bowel control and probable loss of sexual function. Liability was admitted by the Ministry of Defence for the boy's injuries, and in July 2007 the case was settled.

Area Claims Office Afghanistan

8.5 The Area Claims Office, along with the Provincial Reconstruction Team (PRT) and HQ Task Force Helmand, is currently located in Lashkar Gah, capital of Helmand province. The ACOs rotate through Musa Qaleh and Sangin for up to a month at time, usually hosted by the CIMIC team when the security situation allows, whilst a permanent presence is maintained in Lashkar Gah. In addition, visits of a shorter duration are rotated to the Support Bases at Kandahar Air Facility and Kabul to handle the small number of claims which arise at these locations. All movements are by air.

8.6 A total of 994 claims were received of which 300 were settled, 88 transferred to other Troop Contributing Nations within Regional Command (South), and 138 were denied or repudiated, leaving 468 still under investigation at the end of the year.

8.7 The majority of the claims submitted are for damage to property, mainly land and buildings. Fatality claims and very serious injury claims are sent to DS&C(Claims) PLG for investigation and adjudication.

8.8 The claims process is complicated in Afghanistan by the conflict between the expectations of the local nationals, who use local custom and religious law to settle damages, and the definition of legal liability practised by the Ministry of Defence in UK civil litigation. As this conflict has the potential to affect the way the population feels towards the ISAF mission, and thus its ultimate success, a compromise of the process is gradually evolving which will assist "civil effect" and contribute to the effort in winning the consent of the local population.

Area Claims Office (North West Europe) (ACO(NWE))

8.11 ACO(NWE) is part of the Civil Secretariat, Headquarters United Kingdom Support Command (Germany) (HQ(UKSC(G))), located at JHQ, Rheindahlen. The ACO has seven civilian staff responsible for handling claims by and against the Ministry of Defence in Austria, Belgium, Czech Republic, Denmark, France, Germany, Hungary, Luxembourg, Norway, Poland, The Netherlands and Switzerland. Claims include RTAs, Training and Manoeuvre Damage, Public Liability and Loss of Service.

8.12 The vast majority of ACO(NWE) business, approximately 90% of claims received, relates to vehicle movements and is handled in accordance with Article 8.5 of the NATO Status of Forces Agreement (SOFA). Claims processed under Article 8.5 are negotiated by the host nation, and the costs incurred are apportioned between the Ministry of Defence and the host nation on a 25%/75% basis. The host nation therefore has a vested interest in keeping costs as low as possible.

8.13 ACO has seen continued progress towards the removal of the commercial insurance requirement for Ministry of Defence-operated “white fleet” vehicles travelling within the national borders of Austria. Agreement, in principle, has been reached with the Austrian authorities that Article 8.5 of NATO SOFA should apply to visiting forces and consequently they are now considering how this will be handled in practice. It is anticipated that final agreement will be reached by the end of 2008.

8.14 ACO(NWE) remains active in promoting the role of the claims office within BFG by raising its profile with a view to reducing the number of claims received and, more importantly, the associated costs incurred to the GOC HQ UKSC(G) Budget. ACO action in this area in the last year has included briefings and presentations to key stakeholders, such as the RMP, Garrison SHEF focal points and SHEF seminars, DE GWA etc, aimed at ensuring an understanding of the ACO(NWE) requirement and continuation of the vital information flow and stakeholder support.

Area Claims Office Cyprus

8.15 ACO Cyprus is part of the Civil Secretariat, Headquarters British Forces Cyprus located at Episkopi. The ACO has two civilian staff (one C2 Civil Servant and one Local Executive Officer) responsible for handling claims for and against UK Ministry of Defence and the Sovereign Base Areas Administration (SBAA), in Cyprus and its territorial waters. The range of claims investigated include RTAs, Training & Manoeuvre damage, miscellaneous property damage, Public Liability and, for locally employed civilian staff, Employer's Liability claims. Claims are handled in line with the Cyprus Treaty of Establishment (ToE) although the Republic of Cyprus does not have a receiving state/host nation claims office (as is the case in British Forces Germany) and as a result all claims come direct to the ACO to investigate and adjudicate.

8.16 The Cypriot climate and terrain continues to provide excellent training opportunities for British forces, both in the air and on the ground. Most training activity of this nature takes place on privately owned land under access rights afforded by the ToE. The majority of the ACO's work continues to involve investigating Training and Manoeuvre damage claims arising from military exercises or associated helicopter activity. These claims are predominantly for crop damage or the loss of livestock (goats and sheep) which sustain injury or, if pregnant, abort their unborn kids/lambs when panicked by low flying helicopters, dry firing or pyrotechnics.

8.17 ACO is also regularly involved in assessing losses to fruit and vegetable production to farmers whose private land is directly in the centre of a Ministry of Defence-owned live firing range in the east of the island. For safety reasons access is denied to all land during live firing exercises and as a result fruit and crops cannot be watered or harvested, leading to claims for poor yield or over-ripe items unable to be sold at market.

8.18 In providing a direct and rapid response to claims raised by farmers and landowners (ACO visits and inspects all claims received) the office plays a significant role in maintaining the good relations between UKMOD/SBAA and the local community, a vital ingredient in maintaining local consent to the UK's training activities in Cyprus.

8.19 Emphasis on risk management and the reduction of damage to private property remains an ongoing priority for the ACO and this year has seen the creation of an ACO Cyprus intranet website to raise awareness of the claims role and provide a one-stop portal for the chain of command to locate the latest documents relating to Ministry of Defence claims policy as well as local ACO pre-exercise briefings on environmental protection and damage limitation. ACO now routinely attends the HQ BFC Command Master Driver's Road Safety & Transport Management Group meetings to provide direct advice on claims/insurance policy matters and feedback on claims and RTA trends.

8.20 The temporary reduction in the number of UK based units visiting Cyprus for training is reflected in this year's statistics, although a number of long-running and complex claims have reached agreement ensuring another busy year for the office.

Area Claims Office Kosovo

8.21 With effect from 3 May 2005 responsibility for all Balkan claims rested with either SO2 Commercial at Banja Luka or SO3 Commercial at Pristina (Kosovo). Since the closure of the Banja Luka Metal Factory on 27 June 2007, all outstanding and new claims from Bosnia have been administered by DS&C(Claims) PLG. Civ Sec Kosovo (SO3 Commercial) continues to handle the small number of claims arising in Kosovo.

Area Claims Office South Atlantic Islands

8.22 The ACO in the South Atlantic Islands has delegated authority, through the Command Secretariat, to handle common law property damage claims up to the value of £5,000 per claim

8.23 During financial year 2007/08, two claims were received one of which was settled in year; the other, valued at over £5,000, was passed to DS&C (Claims) PLG for adjudication.

8.24 The geographical peculiarities of life in the Falkland and Ascension Islands means that the repairs to damaged vehicles can take a considerable time when parts have to be ordered from UK, and delivered by ship.

8.25 There is an ongoing dispute over accidental damage to the Fox Bay Jetty in 2006 which may result in a Maritime claim. This is currently with the Treasury Solicitor.

Section Nine

Information and Recording Information System (IRIS)

9.1 In their report¹ the National Audit Office (NAO) identified a shortfall in the Department's Incident and Claims reporting and recording systems and recommended that the existing legacy systems be replaced.

9.2 As a result of the NAO report, 2nd PUS directed that agreement be reached between key stakeholders on the development of a single suite of software compatible with DII(F) to be used throughout the Ministry of Defence for the reporting of accidents, recording costs, storing key documents and providing a comprehensive claims management system.

9.3 On 21 December 2007 IRIS became fully operational replacing CHASP as the Ministry of Defence's central accident and incident database of accidents, and RAPID the Claims handling database. IRIS has the potential to identify the cost of claims and to relate these costs to accidents and incidents. This provides a significant step forward in understanding the true cost of accidents and incidents to the Ministry of Defence and will prove invaluable when identifying where best to use resources to improve health and safety performance. IRIS will also provide a mechanism for learning lessons from accidents and incidents and for this information to be available across the Department

9.4 IRIS will also assist in measuring the achievement of the Defence Board health and safety performance targets, key of which are to try and achieve zero health and safety fatalities and a 10% year on year reduction in serious injuries.

9.5 IRIS also has the capability to record environmental incidents and provide an indication of how well the Department is doing in improving environmental performance.

9.6 DS&C is working with Logica and stakeholders across the Department to realise the overall business benefits for the Department as a whole and develop IRIS to meet individual stakeholder business needs.

Section Ten

Insurance and Indemnities

Insurance

10.1 Treasury guidelines generally discourage public bodies from insuring risks unless it can be shown that the potential costs of claims paid, together with the cost of handling such claims, will exceed the cost of purchasing insurance. As the costs of premiums, compared to the amounts paid in compensation, would normally favour insurance companies, the Ministry of Defence self-insures its core activities.

10.2 DS&C(Claims) takes the policy lead on all Ministry of Defence non-contractual insurance issues and encourages units and establishments to transfer risks arising from non-core activities away from the Department.

10.3 Willis (Aerospace) provides insurance, which is self-financing, for four specific non-core aviation risks:

- Military aircraft attendance at air displays
- Civil use of military airfields
- Search and Rescue training with civilian organisations
- Fare-paying passengers on military aircraft

Indemnities

10.4 DS&C(Claims) is responsible for all non-contractual indemnity matters, ranging from issuing indemnities to land owners who are letting the Armed Forces use their land for exercises, to commenting on different clauses within Defence Estates' licenses, indemnity provisions within Memoranda of Understanding (MOU) and other international agreements.

10.5 The Ministry of Defence always seeks an indemnity against claims arising from activities or events that do not further the interests of the Department. Examples include participation by Service personnel or Ministry of Defence civilian staff in non-core fund raising or social activities, work experience for students over the age of sixteen, or the use of Ministry of Defence personnel or equipment by other organisations for activities which have no direct benefit to the Ministry of Defence. The Ministry of Defence must seek an indemnity in such instances as there is no provision in the Defence Estimates to meet claims which are not defence related. Indemnities must be backed by insurance or a guarantee from those companies/organisations that self-insure. The only exception to the requirement for indemnity is when the Ministry of Defence is dealing with other Government Departments. This is because of the principle of indivisibility of the Crown. DS&C(Claims) issued around 180 indemnities in financial year 2007/08. DS&C(Claims) also commented on 290 MOU during the year.

10.6 Indemnities that arise from the Department's contractual business are the responsibility of the appropriate Commercial Branch, with policy guidance provided by the Defence Procurement Agency (Central Services Group, Risk).

Wider Markets

10.7 Income-generating activity under the Government's initiative for 'Selling Government Services into Wider Markets' is also an exception to the rule that the Ministry of Defence does not purchase insurance. However, because of the unusual and hazardous nature of the activities the Ministry of Defence undertakes, commercial insurance may not always be available to cover these activities, or may not be cost effective. Instead customers may pay a Departmental Insurance Charge and any claims for compensation which may arise will then be paid by DS&C(Claims).

10.8 Advice about insurance and risk reduction may be obtained from DS&C(Claims) and from the Ministry of Defence's insurance brokers, Willis Ltd, in accordance with 2006DIN09-014. Willis has created a specialised package of insurance policies offering a full range of business insurances for Budget Holders undertaking income-generating activity.

Section Eleven

Law and Practice

Civil Justice Procedures

11.1 The greatest upheaval ever in the Civil Litigation process occurred when the New Civil Procedure Rules were introduced on 26 April 1999. The Rules, which replaced the existing High Court and County Court Rules, have significantly changed the way common law claims are handled, in an attempt to speed up, simplify and make the whole process less expensive. The Rules, which include pre-action protocols, govern the conduct of litigation and encourage the appointment of a single expert to provide an independent opinion. Although these reforms have been in place for some time now, we believe it is important to recapitulate the main aims and procedures, to serve both as a reminder for regular readers of these reports and as a simple digest for those unfamiliar with the subject.

Aims

11.2 The overriding objective of the rules is to enable the court to deal with cases justly in ways which are proportionate to the amount of money involved, the importance and complexity of the case, and to the parties' financial position.

- Litigation will be avoided wherever possible
- Litigation will be less adversarial and more co-operative
- Litigation will be less complex
- The timescale of litigation will be shorter and more certain
- Parties will be on a more equal footing
- There will be clear lines of judicial and administrative responsibility for the civil justice system
- The structure of the courts and the deployment of judges will be designed to meet the needs of litigants
- Judges will be employed effectively so that they can manage litigation in accordance with the new rules and protocols
- The civil courts system will be responsive to the needs of litigants

11.3 In keeping with the reforms, the Courts have continued to take a proactive approach to case management, setting down directions which decide the order in which issues are to be resolved and fixing timetables to control the progress of the case. In addition, they encourage the parties to co-operate and consider adopting other methods of settlement such as alternative dispute resolution.

11.4 Proportionality plays an important part in the new system and the courts will consider whether the potential benefit of taking a particular step justifies the cost.

Experts

11.5 In the majority of cases a single expert will be instructed and evidence, assuming the case proceeds to court, will normally be in the form of a written report. The defendant and claimant may submit written questions to the expert and both sides will see the expert's response. If the parties to an action cannot agree upon an expert witness they may instruct their own choice of expert but, if the court decides that either party has acted unreasonably, they will not be able to recover the costs of obtaining the expert report.

Pre Action Protocol

11.6 Lord Woolf in his final 'Access to Justice' report of July 1996 recommended the development of pre-action protocols 'to build on and increase the benefits of early but informed settlement that genuinely satisfy both parties to dispute'. The Lord Chancellor strengthened this message in the Foreword of the New Civil Procedures Rules when he stated 'We must not forget, however, that we should see litigation as the last resort and not the first resort in the attempt to settle the dispute'.

11.7 A number of pre-action protocols, including ones for personal injury cases and clinical negligence, have now been published. Eventually all types of litigation will be categorised and, if appropriate, pre-action protocols developed.

11.8 The aims of the pre-action protocol are to promote more pre-action contact between the parties, better exchange of information, better pre-action investigation and thereby to put the parties in a position to settle cases fairly and early, reducing the need for litigation.

11.9 If defendants are unable to comply with the pre-action protocols the courts will have the power to impose sanctions due to non-compliance when proceedings are commenced. Sanctions will likely include a refusal to grant further extensions of time for serving a defence or evidence and costs penalties.

Fast-Track and Multi-Track

11.10 Personal injury claims will be assigned to either a fast-track or multi-track. Fast-track cases will be limited to a value up to £15,000 and will proceed to a hearing quickly.

11.11 There will be an automatic timetable for compliance with the various stages of the litigation. The hearings are designed to be relatively short and in the majority of fast-track cases written evidence only from a single expert will be accepted.

11.12 Multi-track cases currently will generally involve claims with a value in excess of £15,000 or which feature complex issues. Case management by the courts will play an important part in setting the timescales for certain stages of the case and defendants may possibly be required to attend a case conference before a judge, when decisions will be made as to the future conduct of the claim.

11.13 The personal injury pre-action protocol (primarily designed for cases with a value of less than £15,000) sets out the following stages:

Letter of Claim

11.14 The letter of claim will contain a clear summary of the facts on which the claim is based, including allegations of negligence, and will include details of any injuries suffered or financial losses incurred.

Defendant's Reply

11.15 The defendant should acknowledge within 21 calendar days of the date of posting of the letter of claim in Personal Injury cases and fourteen calendar days in Clinical Negligence cases.

Claim Investigation

11.16 The defendant will have a maximum of three months from the date of acknowledgement of the claim to investigate. No later than at the end of that period the defendant must inform the claimant, or their legal representative, whether liability is admitted in full, is denied, or there is a partial admission. If the defendant denies liability they should enclose with the letter of reply documents material to the issues between the parties, and which would be likely to be ordered to be disclosed by the court. If a defendant is unable to comply with the requirements of the pre-action protocol, the claimant will be able to issue proceedings at the end of the three-month period.

11.17 If the defendant makes a proper denial of liability giving the detailed explanation and documents required under the protocol, many cases will proceed no further. In such cases it will be for the claimant to make a decision whether to proceed with the case.

11.18 Defendants will no longer be able to delay making a decision as to whether to settle or fight and they will no longer be able to make a simple blanket denial of liability without giving reasons.

Proceedings

11.19 There will be a strict timetable for dealing with the Defence. In the majority of cases the time limit will be 28 days after proceedings are served. One extension of time may be granted, although in circumstances where the defendant has failed to comply with the pre-action protocol, it is very unlikely that any extension will be given.

11.20 The Defence must also fulfil new requirements under the rules. The new requirements are as follows:

- the Defence must state which facts are admitted;
- the Defence must state which facts are denied and provide supporting documentary evidence;
- the Defence must state the defendant's own version of events; and
- the Defence must identify which facts the defendant is unable to admit or deny and which the claimant is required to prove.

Statement of Truth

11.21 Under the rules a Statement of Truth must verify the Defence. The form of the statement is as follows:

'The defendant believes that the facts stated in this defence are true.'

The statement is not sworn, but must be signed by:

- a senior officer of the company, corporation or organisation;
- a partner in control of a business; or
- a legal representative.

11.22 The person signing the statement of truth must identify his or her office or position in the organisation. It follows that the person signing must have authority to sign on behalf of the organisation. If a legal representative signs, he or she is deemed to have explained the consequences to the defendant and the penalties are the same as if the defendant had signed.

11.23 A person who signs without honest belief in the truth of the Defence is guilty of contempt of court. In an extreme case this could result in a fine or even a prison sentence for the person who approved the contents of the Defence and authorised its signature.

11.24 It follows that in future solicitors will always ask the defendant either to sign the Defence or to approve the contents of the Defence before signing on the defendant's behalf. If the Defence is not signed the court will strike it out and the defendant will lose his or her opportunity to defend the claim.

11.25 Bearing in mind the tight time schedules, the Department will need to be in a position to deal with the Defence quickly. In the case of claims against the Ministry of Defence, the appropriate persons to sign the Statement of Truth or verify the Defence will be the Chief Claims Officer or a Senior Claims Officer.

Disclosure

11.26 The Civil Procedure Rules specify the type of documents which the defendant must disclose and set time limits for doing so. Many of these documents will have been disclosed under the pre-action protocol: i.e. within the initial three-month period for investigation.

11.27 Under the rule, standard documents to be disclosed include:

- all documents which could adversely affect the case;
- all documents which could adversely affect the other side's case; and
- all documents which could support the other party's case.

11.28 A defendant is required to make a reasonable search for documents depending on:

- the significance of the document;
- the number of documents;
- the complexity of the case; and
- the ease and expense of retrieval.

Disclosure Statement

11.29 The list of documents which is sent to the other side will include a disclosure statement containing the following information:

- the identity of the person making the statement;
- the extent of the search that has been made to trace documents;

- why the person signing the statement is the appropriate person;
- confirmation that he or she understands the duty to disclose; and
- confirmation that that duty has been carried out to the best of his or her ability.

11.30 There will clearly be an onus on the defendant to make sure that the documents can be obtained quickly and that they are up-to-date. The person who signs the disclosure statement or who authorises the solicitor to sign it on the defendant's behalf, must understand his or her duty and have the appropriate authority within the organisation.

11.31 The implementation of the reforms involved a massive change in working practices. At the outset, and indeed some time before the changes took place, Claims officials undertook additional specialist training to ensure they would comply with the rules. Updating and refresher courses and workshops have been undertaken during the last year. The acquisition of new and specialist skills has been recognised in the DS&C(Claims) Functional Competence Framework.

11.32 Units and Establishments have also become far more aware of how the protocols and rules operate. Claims officials will continue to work closely with, and remind, Units and Establishments of their duties to co-operate in supplying information and assisting in defence of claims.

11.33 Accidents must be reported promptly and accurately with improvements made to document handling and availability.

11.34 Witnesses must be identified and made available for interview early in the claims process. Similarly, defendants will need to be able to identify and find relevant documents.

11.35 The courts will not be sympathetic to the Department arguing that there has been insufficient time to investigate a claim. Neither will the courts deem the Department to be a special case because of its size, widespread locations or the deployment of key witnesses overseas.

Legal Services Commission (Legal Aid)

11.36 It is well over 50 years since the Legal Aid and Advice Act was enacted. For the first time, it gave access to justice to a range of people who beforehand could not afford to bring a case in criminal or civil law. Eligibility for legal aid depended on the applicant's disposable income and capital but anecdotal evidence is plentiful about how legal aid was wrongly or rightly distributed and it therefore came as no surprise that Legal Aid for Personal Injury claims was abolished in April 2000. The majority of such claims are now likely to be the subject of a conditional fee whereby a claimant's solicitor can uplift his normal charging rate by 100% if successful (providing the success fee does not exceed more than 25% of the total compensation).

11.37 Conditional fees can cause problems for Claims officials when trying to estimate the legal costs element of settling a claim. One method of overcoming this problem is to ask the claimant's solicitor to clarify the basis of funding the costs together with an indication of the success fee agreed. However, as the rules stand, solicitors are not obliged to provide this information to the Defendant and to do so might give an indication of the strength of their client's case. In many cases, therefore, the level of the success fee will not be known until after the case has settled.

11.38 In these cases there will be a far greater opportunity to recover our legal costs because as part of the conditional fee arrangements a claimant will likely take out insurance to protect against the risk of losing the action and to provide an indemnity for the defendant's legal costs. It will therefore be our practice, and the practice of our commercial claims handlers, to pursue claimants with conditional fee arrangements for our costs, in the event that we are successful in the defence of the claim

Alternative Dispute Resolution

11.39 Alternative Dispute Resolution/mediation is considered in cases where there is some evidence to support a claim of negligence. In cases where there is currently no evidence it is not deemed appropriate.

Counsel-to-Counsel Settlement Conferences

11.40 In cases where liability is not an issue, counsel-to-counsel settlement conferences are an innovative and financially attractive way of settling cases without going to trial or settling at the courtroom door. A round table consultation is arranged with the Department represented by counsel, the Chief Claims Officer or Senior Claims Officer and Treasury Solicitor. This method of negotiated settlement has had a significant effect on the way claims are handled due to the claimant and defendant showing an element of goodwill combined with a realistic approach. This has demonstrated that it is possible to agree a settlement without recourse to the courts. An added benefit is that the claimant need not undergo the trauma of a court case to secure compensation for an injury or loss caused by the Department's negligence.

Mediation

11.41 Mediation is a route strongly favoured by the Lord Chancellor as the way forward for civil justice in the UK, for cases where there is some evidence to support a claim. However in cases where there is currently no evidence to support a claim, mediation would not be appropriate. The Department is signed up to mediation as a method of Alternative Dispute Resolution, but as the then Lord Chancellor's Department's Press Notice on the subject made clear, Alternative Dispute Resolution is not appropriate in every case. Judges are also now directing parties to an action to mediate the case rather than letting it proceed to court.

11.42 The mediation process employs an independent person (the mediator) to facilitate negotiations between parties in a dispute in an effort to reach a mutually accepted resolution. The process is voluntary, flexible, confidential and non-binding, and can be entered into and terminated at the discretion of either party. A number of claims made against the Ministry of Defence have been successfully concluded through the mediation process.

11.43 In financial year 2007/08, seventeen Counsel to Counsel and Mediation Conferences took place resulting in savings to the Department of some £15M. Had these cases run to court, the legal costs payable by the Ministry of Defence would have been in the region of £2M.

11.44 The Chief Claims Officer and Senior Claims Officer (Claims Handling) are accredited mediators and members of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators. The Team Leader for Clinical Negligence claims is also an accredited mediator.

Contributory Negligence

11.45 Where a person suffers an injury, partly as a result of his own fault and partly the fault of another person, any subsequent claim for damages he pursues may be reduced to reflect his contribution to the cause of the loss. This principle is governed by the Law Reform (Contributory Negligence) Act 1945.

11.46 The following are some examples of Contributory Negligence:

- Driver or pedestrian failing to keep a proper lookout;
- Claimant failing to turn off a machine before cleaning it;
- Failure of motorcyclist to wear a crash helmet;
- Failure to wear seat belt while travelling in a vehicle;
- Riding in a vehicle as a passenger with a driver who is known to be under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

11.47 The claimant's lack of care must be a contributory factor to his injury. However, some concession is made towards children and towards people suffering from some infirmity or disability who are unable to be held responsible for their own actions.

Rehabilitation

11.48 Rehabilitation, as a method of assisting injured or ill people back to work, is a matter that is attracting an increasing level of support amongst various bodies in Government, the Judiciary and the legal profession. It is claimed that at present the UK's track record in getting injured or ill people back to work falls well behind that of other Western countries. By way of supporting this, it is claimed by the London International Insurance and Reinsurance Market Association (LIRMA), in a study entitled UK Bodily Injury, that the prospects of a paraplegic returning to full time employment is at least 50% in Scandinavian countries, compared to about 14% in the UK.

11.49 DS&C(Claims) aims to utilise rehabilitation where appropriate when compensation claims are made. Rehabilitation is expected to assume far greater prominence in the claims handling process with the revision of the Civil Procedure Rules pre-action protocol on the handling of Personal Injury claims.

Fraud

11.50 Although the Ministry of Defence self-insures its core risks, and compensation payments are made directly from the Defence budget, the risks posed by fraudulent claimants are as real for the Department as they are for the insurance industry. Claims staff are therefore alert to the possibility of fraud, or grossly exaggerated claims, and, as part of the process of determining liability for the claim, critically assesses the information provided by claimants.

11.51 Surveillance might be undertaken to observe the true extent of a claimant's alleged injuries in cases where there is reasonable suspicion about the veracity of a claim. Claims that are found to be exaggerated are either repudiated or settled at a greatly reduced level of damages in line with the injury suffered and true level of loss incurred by the claimant.

11.52 Cases where investigations suggest that claims are substantially exaggerated, fraudulent throughout, or relate to wholly contrived or fabricated incidents are, as a matter of course, passed to the Ministry of Defence Fraud Squad with a view to proceeding with a criminal prosecution.

Periodic Payments

11.53 The traditional method of payment following settlement of a compensation claim has been by the payment of a single lump sum. If prudently invested, this would provide a stream of income representing loss of future earnings and/or the need for continued care for the anticipated remainder of the claimant's life.

11.54 A periodic payment normally consists of a conventional lump sum to the claimant together with a regular payment made on a monthly, quarterly or annual basis. The periodic payment can be made by way of an annuity purchased in the marketplace or, in the case of Government Departments and the National Health Litigation Service, on a self-funded basis. The Ministry of Defence has entered into 29 periodic payment arrangements in high value cases which, up to 1 April 2005, needed the consent of both the defendant and the claimant.

11.55 With the implementation of the Courts Act on 1 April 2005, the Courts now have the power to impose periodic payment settlements and must consider in every case, involving future pecuniary loss, whether periodical payments are a suitable means to pay all or part of the damages

11.56 The changes have been introduced to ensure a guaranteed income stream for those facing long-term care needs and future loss of earnings. The Court will also have the power to make a variable order to alter the terms of the periodic payment in cases where the claimant suffers some serious deterioration or, indeed, significant improvement. In a landmark case of Thompsonstone v Thameside & Glossop Acute Services NHS Trust the health authorities appealed against the first instance decisions that periodical payments in respect of future care be indexed in accordance with the Annual Survey of Hourly Earnings (ASHE 6115) rather than RPI. The Court of Appeal considered the circumstances in which it would be appropriate to award some part of the damages due to the Claimants on a periodical payments basis and also gave consideration to the appropriate index to be applied if different from RPI. The Court of Appeal ruled that indexation for future care costs on the basis of the ASHE 6115 was appropriate. This ruling will make such payments considerably more expensive for Defendants.

Total number of periodic payments	28	29	29
Total payments each year	£1,243,000	£1,388,506	£1,400,364

Third Party Accident Scheme (ToPaS)

11.57 If Ministry of Defence Civil Servants or Service Personnel are injured in any type of accident caused by a third party (e.g. a member of the public or a contractor) whilst they are on duty, it is the individual's own responsibility to pursue a common law claim for compensation against that third party without any assistance or involvement by the Department. The reason for this is that the law does not recognise the Department's involvement in such cases and therefore the Ministry of Defence does not have authority to incur expenditure in such circumstances. The only exception to this is that Civil Servants injured in road traffic accidents can have their legal costs underwritten by their TLB (see 2008DIN01-012) but this does not apply to Service Personnel or to Civil Servants injured in other circumstances.

11.58 In order to alleviate these concerns, a scheme called ToPaS (Third Party Accident Scheme) has been in operation since November 2000, which provides legal advice and assistance to Ministry of Defence Civil Servants and Service Personnel who have been injured whilst on duty and who consider the injury to be the fault of a negligent third party. Ralli Solicitors (formerly called Betesh Fox and Co), a firm of solicitors who specialise in personal injury claims, operates the scheme on behalf of the Ministry of Defence. The scheme works on a conditional fee basis (commonly known as “no-win, no-fee”). This means that any legally sustainable claim which Ministry of Defence personnel submit to Ralli will be free of charge to the individual. If the claim is successful, in addition to the compensation that has been paid, all legal costs including any money that has been paid for by Ralli will be recovered separately from the party at fault. If the claim is unsuccessful there will no charge to the Ministry of Defence or to the individual concerned, as the costs will be borne by an insurance policy which is placed and paid for by Ralli.

11.59 Generally, ToPaS will offer free advice and a help line for victims of accidents abroad, who should in the first instance call 0870 998 9000. There are many occasions when, although the accident occurred abroad, a claim can still be made within the UK and appropriate compensation can be recovered. On the other hand, Ministry of Defence personnel who suffer injury as a result of the negligence of a foreign national when abroad may need to obtain the services of a local lawyer. ToPaS can assist in locating a suitable legal representative in such circumstances.

11.60 Under the Fifth EU Motor Insurance Directive a claimant who is resident (“domiciled”) in England and who has been injured in a road traffic accident in another EU country, may issue court proceedings against the foreign third party in an English County Court or the High Court. Claimants have the choice of issuing court proceedings in their home court or, alternatively, in the country in which the accident occurred.

11.61 Since May 2004 hundreds of unit visits/meetings have been conducted using the opportunity to brief key unit personnel, discuss how to advertise the scheme and hand out ToPaS information packs and posters. Without doubt presentations have been the most effective way of getting this important message across to all Ministry of Defence personnel, and they have also provided an ideal opportunity for questions and feed back. The response from those units who have made contact has been excellent. Enquiries have come from Canada, the South Atlantic Islands, Germany, Northern Ireland and from across mainland UK. Should you require further information regarding ToPaS, or you would like to arrange either a short briefing or presentation, or you wish to make a claim under the scheme then please contact:
