

Common Purpose 20:20

High level briefings for national leaders

“There are no easy answers. And Common Purpose is no easy ride. It challenges every personal and professional prejudice you have. It’s unsettling. It’s also the best learning I’ve ever done.”

Susan Rice, Chief Executive, Lloyds TSB Scotland

Bring the future into focus

A one-week investment can pay dividends for years, as the future comes into focus.

Participants of 20:20 assess, from the insights and information that they have gained, the key drivers which will shape the future and in the process, glimpse the political, social and economic landscape of the UK in the next 15 to 20 years.

In the course of this intensive and exciting programme, participants have the opportunity to:

evaluate their strategies in the European and global context

develop their understanding of the workings of government whether in Westminster, Edinburgh, Belfast or Brussels, so equipping them to work with and influence the decision-making process more effectively expand their horizons and develop their strategic thinking by honing their understanding of international trends generate

new ideas that will take their organisations and communities forward

learn about the importance and practical implications of managing diversity in the light of demographic changes and increasing globalisation

stand back

back from the day-to-day and consider the long term, thus reducing the risk of getting derailed by the unexpected.

“The opportunities and threats ahead will not come neatly parcelled to fit the department or division or sector or culture or even country in which we have arranged ourselves. They will cross boundaries and come through walls - and our leaders need to be able to do this too.”

Julia Middleton, Founder and Chief Executive, Common Purpose, from her book 'Beyond Authority: Leadership in a Changing World'

About 20:20

20:20 is Common Purpose's programme that brings together senior leaders from across the UK.

Participants explore how these key drivers will affect them, their organisations and the wider community.

The result?

Leaders will be better equipped to see the context, adapt fast in new surroundings and produce change wherever they are, enabling them to lead more effectively both within and beyond their authority.

The intensive, five-day programme provides the cross-sector group of senior decision makers with a wide-angle view of the way the UK works, where it sits in an international context and what its long-term future holds.

The programme is demanding - delivering a combination of hard knowledge, practical anecdotes, team activities, 'live' case studies and the chance to cross-examine prominent practitioners. The process of analysing issues of both local and global importance will stretch the long-term thinking and strategic abilities of each participant.

Through briefings from top-level businesspeople, politicians, civil servants and economists, the participant group assesses the economic, political, technological and social trends that will shape the UK in years to come.

The diversity, range and calibre of speakers is a hallmark of 20:20. Each contributor brings another dimension to a fascinating wide-angle view of the UK and how it is likely to change in the years ahead. Global input with insiders from Delhi to Beijing provide additional insights into the minds of thinkers and doers.

“To succeed in today's fast-moving world you have to know what's happening outside your own field, beyond your patch. Common Purpose's 20:20 programme counters insularity; it's an opportunity to gain an advantage, to equip yourself to visualise and manage the future. Every executive who has the chance to participate should.”

David Bell, Director for People, Pearson plc

20:20 will enable you to raise your game as a leader in the UK

20:20 has two central themes: governance and wealth creation. These are explored using speakers, case studies, debate and team-based tasks. The programme is demanding and highly participatory.

Governance

Participants delve into how government operates and the realities of policy-making in the UK and Europe. The roles of ministers, politicians, civil servants, lobby groups and the media in shaping and deciding policy are explored with the help of the players themselves. The practicalities of the decision-making process are examined against the background of changing structures both in the UK and the EU.

Wealth creation

The strengths and weaknesses of the UK economy and its European and global contexts are viewed from the different perspectives of senior economists, business leaders and politicians from the UK and around the world. Major developments such as the growth of different economies and globalisation are highlighted and their economic and political impact analysed.

“The most enlightening, informative and challenging programme I have attended for many years. The standard both of presenters and participants was first rate. The opportunity to explore a whole range of strategic influences in such an imaginative way was invaluable.”

Darren Hayes-Powell, Financial Controller,
Gas Turbine Operations UK, Rolls-Royce UK

What people say...

“An intensive and fascinating insight into decision-making at the top level. 20:20 has helped me to understand the mechanics of policy-making in the UK and Europe – and how to influence it.”

David Crompton, Assistant Chief Constable
West Yorkshire Police

“I found the diversity of participants a particularly unique and enriching ingredient. 20:20 was informative and thought provoking. It enabled us to examine major political, financial and social drivers both in the UK and abroad.”

Alan McKendrick, Chief Executive
Aylesford Newsprint Ltd

“A fantastic opportunity to raise one's head from the day to day, and to consider the bigger picture. The combination of inspiring delegates and impressive speakers encouraged a vastly improved understanding of the complex political environment in which we operate.”

Kathleen Soriano, Director
Compton Verney House Trust

In addition to 20:20 for national leaders, Common Purpose provides programmes for:

- Leaders - Matrix and Focus
- Leaders who need flexibility - TheKNOW
- Emerging leaders - Common Purpose Navigator

- Leaders who need a local briefing - Profile
- Leaders who have more to offer - What Next?
- Understanding how power works in:
 - UK - Power Dynamic UK
 - Scotland - Power Dynamic Scotland
 - EU - Power Dynamic Europe
- Individual organisations - Customised programmes

“The programme delivers a fascinating insight into global and national trends and issues, through a unique combination of world-class speakers, actual field visits, and a richly diverse group of participants from all walks of the public and private sector world. Hugely thought provoking.”

Steve Peacock, President,
BP Middle East & South Asia

Common Purpose gives leaders the inspiration, the knowledge and the connections they need to produce real change.

Organisations:

- benefit from more inspired leaders who are better able to lead beyond their authority, both within their organisations and in the outside world.

Communities:

- benefit from more - and more diverse - leaders who are energised and engaging in civil society.

Participants:

- raise their game as leaders
- work more effectively with people from diverse backgrounds and sectors
- make better decisions because they understand the wider context in which they are operating
- generate new ideas and opportunities that will take their organisations and society forward
- develop new networks that can support - and challenge - them in new ways.

As a result, the leaders who have been on Common Purpose programmes think bigger, network more effectively and stand out as leaders not only within but also beyond their organisations.
