Dear Mr Gilmour

Freedom of Information request: reference 37985

Thank you for your e-mail of 04 January in which you ask for:

“1) How many different devices with web-browsing functionality the Home Secretary uses, for example desktop PC, laptop PC, tablets, smartphones, games consoles.

2) Which Internet Service Providers (ISPs) provide the internet connection to the devices enumerated in answer to 1) above.

3) The date, time, and domain address of every website visited by the Home Secretary during December 2015.”

Your request has been handled as a request for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

We have considered your request and we believe it to be vexatious. Section 14(1) of the Act provides that the Home Office is not obliged to comply with a request for information of this nature. We have decided that your request is vexatious because on three previous occasions you have requested similar information for which you have received responses.

If you are dissatisfied with this response you may request an independent internal review of our handling of your request by submitting a complaint within two months to the address below, quoting reference 37985. If you ask for an internal review, it would be helpful if you could say why you are dissatisfied with the response.

As part of any internal review the Department's handling of your information request will be reassessed by staff who were not involved in providing you with this response. If you remain dissatisfied after this internal review, you would have a right of complaint to the Information Commissioner as established by section 50 of the Freedom of Information Act.

Yours sincerely,

Ministerial Support Unit
