INFORMATION FOR THE FAMILY / PERSON REPORTING

We treat reports of missing people very seriously. Indeed, a considerable amount of our time and resources are devoted to trying to find people who go missing. In the course of our enquiries, there are many things Police have to consider, such as:

- The well being of the missing person.
- Respecting their right and freedom to go missing – some people simply do not wish to be found.
- The possibility that the missing person may be a victim of crime.
- Preservation and management of evidence in suspicious cases.
- Allocating appropriate levels of resources to the enquiry.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT?

Members of staff will be appointed to supervise the enquiry and to keep in touch with relatives and friends.

WE WILL ...

- Inform you of the level of risk associated to the missing person.
- Search the home address of the missing person.
- Check other relevant places, e.g. work place, hospitals, and homes of friends and relatives.
- Keep you informed about the enquiry.
- Provide full details of how to keep in touch and provide you with support appropriate to your needs.

HOW CAN YOU HELP THE POLICE?

There are many ways in which family, relatives and friends can help the Police locate a missing person. We value your suggestions on particular lines of enquiry and would encourage you to discuss with us the area where you believe you can help most. This may include:

- Keeping a diary to log your own efforts, information and questions. This will include a record of all searches that you have made along with communications with family, friends, acquaintances and agencies. This will be extremely helpful to share with the Police during the enquiry.
- Arranging with the National Missing Persons Helpline (NMPH) to produce "free of charge" photograph posters of the missing person. These will carry the NMPH freephone telephone number on, and can be displayed where they will have the maximum impact, e.g. bus/railway stations. Any sightings that went to the Helpline would be passed onto the Police.
- We would encourage you to tell Police officers what you intend to do.
- If you have any questions regarding our procedures or any particular concerns, do not hesitate to ask.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN THE MISSING PERSON TURNS UP AND SAFE AND WELL?

- Firstly, please let us know immediately so that we can cancel the enquiry.
- Once the missing person has been seen by a police officer who is able to confirm that the person is safe and well, the missing report will be cancelled.

THIS PAGE TO BE DETACHED AND GIVEN TO PERSON REPORTING

WE WILL ...

- Inform interested parties that the person is safe and well.
- Not disclose the whereabouts of that person without their consent. However this may vary in certain circumstances, e.g. where due to age or infirmity.
- Interview the missing person for welfare reasons.
- Investigate any allegations of crime.
