West Yorkshire Police participated in the Best Use of Stop and Search Scheme (BUSSS) from 2014 to 2019.

This meant stricter guidance, most notably the minimum level of authorising officer changing from Inspector to Assistant Chief Constable or Commander; and a requirement that incidents of serious violence 'will' take place opposed to 'may' take place.

These changes meant that the power was not used as frequently.

In 2019, the authority levels in the guidance were relaxed back to Inspector and above, with a lower threshold requirement for incidents of serious violence reducing from 'will' back to 'may' take place. This relaxation in the guidance has therefore meant that more incidents now fit into the criteria for authorising searches under Section 60 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994.
