Morning Neil

Apologies for the delay in response, have been on leave then usual catching up stuff

I'm not too bad thanks - post-holiday blues notwithstanding – I trust the same is for you

I can confirm that the works at the North Kelsey site won't be starting in the immediate future and there won't be any activity that will coincide with the Anglian Water works. I've copied in Rachel Smith of Clarence Communications, who manages Egdon's PR, as we are drafting a communication for circulation to provide an update, and will ensure you receive a copy when it's issued

I hope this helps

Kind regards

Martin

Subject: North Kelsey

Morning Martin,

Hope you are well.

Have just sent an email to Paul Foster setting out the request below but have received an out of office response until 21October so thought I would contact you direct with the information set out below. Is this something you are able to do? Happy to chat further if this helps.

We are receiving fairly regular contacts from residents in the North Kelsey area who are concerned that work on the oil exploration is about to start any time now. Also there is a major project being undertaken by Anglian Water in the area which will result in a number of road closures in the area into January 2020. Again there is concern that if the works at North Kelsey are about to start then this will result in different routes to the site being required and we are being asked about the planning implications of such a scenario. I am aware that Egdon are not anticipating starting works until Spring 2020 and think it would be helpful if Egdon could make an announcement to this effect so that it enables those in the local community to be more relaxed about the situation.

Kind regards

Neil
