Tax-Free Childcare

Tax-Free Childcare offers working families support towards qualifying childcare costs. The scheme is delivered by HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC)

It replaces the Employer Supported Childcare Scheme, also known as the Childcare Voucher Scheme.

It is available to parents who are:

- full-time employees
- self-employed including those starting their own business
- working part time
- on paid and unpaid maternity, paternity or adoption leave
- on paid sick leave
- unable to work due to disability or caring responsibilities

The scheme is available in England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

How does Tax-Free Childcare work?

Parents can open an online account through GOV.UK.

They use the account to pay for childcare costs whilst working.

The government will top-up the account to a maximum amount (for details of the amounts see GOV.UK).

The childcare must be obtained from a registered or approved childcare provider.

The online childcare account is provided by National Savings & Investments (NS&I) in partnership with HMRC.

Other people can pay into the account (for example, grandparents, other family members or employers).

Eligibility for Tax-Free Childcare

Universal Credit and Tax-Free Childcare

Claimants won't be eligible to open a Tax-Free Childcare account if they are receiving or have any outstanding claim to receive, any element of Universal Credit.

Claimants can move between tax-free childcare and Universal Credit as their circumstances change, provided they meet the eligibility conditions.

If there are no changes of circumstances, a claimant will be limited to the number of times they can switch between the schemes.

After claiming Universal Credit, claimants with a Tax-Free Childcare account:

- must not reconfirm eligibility for Tax-Free Childcare when they receive the Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) reminder

- will have their Tax-Free Childcare account become 'pay only'
- must withdraw or use any remaining money in their Tax-Free Childcare account within two years of claiming Universal Credit

If a claimant needs help using the Tax-Free Childcare account, they can call the HMRC childcare service helpline on 0300 123 4097.

They can also claim for childcare costs through Universal Credit.

Claimants should not end their Universal Credit until they know which offers are available and how much they could get. This is to make sure that they will not be worse off going on to Tax-Free Childcare from Universal Credit.

In a limited number of cases, some claimants moving to Universal Credit from Tax-Free Childcare will temporarily receive 105% of their childcare costs in support from the two schemes, 85% from Universal Credit and 20% from Tax-Free Childcare.

Parents in receipt of Universal Credit will be able to use any money in their online tax-free childcare account for up to two years after they cease to qualify for the top-up payments.
