Hi James, Anth

We noticed that an All Party Parliamentary Group has launched a consultation to obtain 'clinical consensus' on protective measures for vulnerable groups, including use of Evusheld. It's supported by [REDACTED] who is attached to the NHS Cancer Programme.

Consultation launch: Clinical consensus statement on protective measures for vulnerable groups: Appg Vulnerablegroups \(appg-vulnerablegroups.org\)

Is this process something NHS England, NICE or any of the agencies would contribute to?

Once the new SofS has received advice on Evusheld, we plan to write to parliamentarians and could include the APPG [REDACTED] to note). But wanted to check in with you on any clinical engagement your side might lead on.

Thank you,
