It may be an idea, but if it is conditioned it should be ok. Bearing in mind this is only for a few years.....

From your experience [REDACTED], do you think we should ask for the detail now?

Hi [REDACTED]

I would probably lean towards (1)

In all reality, can you see the LA planners supporting this?

Thanks

Importance: High

I think they are just trying to establish the principle of use – that's how I read it.

I have 2 choices and I am comfortable with either:

- 1 I say no objections subject to details being provided: or
- 2 Ask for the details now.

Which route do you think I should go?

Hi ■

In relation to this particular planning application, we do support the principle of it. However, there is no technical details whatsoever provided in the D&A Statement and no designs provided. It is also unclear whether this is linked to the previous planning application for this site from the group, which included pitch provision.

Unless ■ and I have missed something on the planning portal (I don't think we have as we both checked each document), there's no detail provided. Have you found something we haven't, as intrigued by your comment on it being fun.

Kind regards

■
