Dear John Dimitroulopoulos,

I refer to your Freedom of Information request received on 7 December 2019 about UCAS tariffs for law students.

Details of any exemptions applied are below. Where any information is “not held”, this is explained below. Those parts of the University’s response (together with the details of how to ask the University to review the management of your request, or thereafter to seek a review by the Scottish Information Commissioner, should you wish to do so – please see below) constitutes the notice in writing that the information specified is not held by the University which is required under section 17 of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 (“FOISA”).

Your enquiry and the University's response.

Dear Sir/Madam,

I would like to request the following data for candidates who enrolled in all of the law-related courses offered by your university in autumn 2019:

1. The average UCAS entry tariff achieved by law students who enrolled at your university having sat Scottish qualifications;

The average UCAS tariff for Scottish domiciled applicants entering the course with SQA qualifications was 205

2. The average UCAS entry tariff achieved by law students who enrolled at your university having sat A-levels.

Only had one student entered in September 2019 with A Levels.

The University is required to consider legislative tests applying to personal data when a request is received. This includes where information, either on its own or in combination with other information, might lead to the identification of individuals and/or the disclosure of personal data about them, or their ‘special categories’ of personal data.

The University considers that to release the information requested would not be fair or lawful to the data subject(s) or would otherwise breach the Data Protection Principles (Article 5, General Data Protection Regulation). The University has therefore applied the exemption for personal data in section 38(1)(b) of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 and has withheld the entrance tariff for this student. Where applicable under the legislation, the University has also considered that the public interest test favours the withholding of the information.

The Higher Education Statistics Agency ("HESA") has provided more information on redacting/disguising low numbers and data protection. HESA routinely does this, and is the UK higher education sector's leading statistical reporting and research body. Their information on low numbers is available to you at:

<https://www.hesa.ac.uk/about/regulation/data-protection/rounding-and-suppression-anonymise-statistics>

For more information, please refer to the Information Commissioner's Office guidance at:

<https://ico.org.uk/for-organisations/guide-to-the-general-data-protection-regulation-gdpr/>

I would also like to request the average IB total score (out of 45) achieved by law students who enrolled in the following years. Please provide the average IB score for each year separately:

3. 2017: four applicants with average score of 32

4. 2018: two applicants with average score of 29

5. 2019: One applicant. Again, the University considers that to release the score could lead to the identification of the individual.

Thank you for your time. Do let me know if any clarification is required.

This concludes the University's response.
