7th April 2014

Dear A Willmore,

Freedom of Information Act 2000 – RFI20140415

Thank you for your request under the Freedom of Information Act ('the Act') of 10th March 2014, seeking:

“With reference to the photograph shown on BBC News page <http://news.bbc.co.uk/1/hi/england/london/6927591.stm> and your answer to Question 9 of RFI20131064 please provide the following information as a Freedom Of Information request:

- 1) Where are the green hand held devices as referred to in FOI request RFI20131064 manufactured? I am requesting the name of the BBC Department and its geographic location.*
- 2) How many people are employed in the manufacture of these devices?*
- 3) What is the cost to the licence fee payer for the manufacture of these devices?”*

The devices you have referred to are manufactured by the BBC. The BBC does not have a separate facility for manufacturing these devices, although certain components, or assembly of those components, may be commissioned by the BBC from third parties. The BBC does not employ members of staff specifically for the manufacture of these devices.

We can confirm under section 1(1) of the Act that the BBC's holds further information relevant to your request. However, we are withholding it because we consider that the requested information is exempt from disclosure under section 31(1)(a), b), (d) and (g) and 2(a) of the Act, i.e. disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the prevention or detection of crime, the collection of the licence fee and the BBC's ability to discharge its public functions in respect of such matters. This is because it would provide information of use to those seeking to evade and/or assist others in evading paying the licence fee.

As section 31 is a qualified exemption, we are required by section 2(2) of the Act to assess whether the public interest in maintaining the exemption outweighs the public interest in disclosing the information.

Consideration of the public interest test

The following factors are in favour of disclosure:

1. Ensuring that the licensing authority is exercising its functions appropriately and proportionately; and
2. Ensuring that public funds are being appropriately applied, that is:
  - a. ensuring that the TV Licensing system is being efficiently run; and
  - b. ensuring that value for money is being obtained.

I consider that the above public interest factors in favour of disclosure are served by the following:

1. The fact that the BBC is inspected by an independent body - the Office of Surveillance Commissioners - which monitors the BBC's compliance with legislation regarding detection every three years, and in doing so ensures that the public are not unfairly or unlawfully subject to detection.
2. The BBC is required to satisfy the National Audit Office ('NAO') as to the value for money of the collection and enforcement arrangements and is accountable for the economy, efficiency and effectiveness of such arrangements. NAO's most recent audit is published on the NAO website at www.nao.org.uk.
3. The BBC has reduced the cost of collection from 6.2% of the total licence fee collected in 1991/2, when it took over this responsibility from the Home Office, to 3.0% for the financial year 12/13. This demonstrates that the TV Licensing system is being efficiently run. This and further related information is available in the BBC's annual report (see www.bbc.co.uk) and the TV Licensing Annual Review (www.tvlicensing.co.uk/about/our-performance-AB6/).

In addition, the following factors are in favour of withholding the information:

1. The BBC has a duty to enforce the television licensing system and it is essential that evasion is kept to a minimum.
2. Part of keeping evasion to a minimum is maintaining uncertainty as to TV Licensing's enforcement practices. This includes safeguarding information relating to the details of the manufacture of any detection equipment that is used by enquiry officers. This uncertainty contributes to the deterrent effect which is an important part of TV Licensing's enforcement strategy.

3. Without an effective deterrent to licence fee evasion, evasion would invariably increase. This would be to the detriment of the honest majority of people who are properly licensed and to the overall amount of revenue available to the BBC.
4. An increase in the rate of licence fee evasion would lead to an increase in enforcement costs and may lead to more prosecutions.
5. An increase in enforcement costs would lead to a decrease in the available funds to be put towards producing the BBC's content.

In this instance, the public interest is served by maintaining an effective deterrent to licence fee evasion. This in turn protects the BBC's revenue stream and keeps prosecutions to a minimum.

I have concluded that there is a greater public interest in ensuring the effective collection of the licence fee than in disclosing the information you have sought. I am therefore satisfied, in terms of section 2 of the Act, that in all the circumstances of the case, the public interest in maintaining the exemption outweighs the public interest in disclosing the information.

Additionally, the Information Commissioner has acknowledged in his Decision Notice FS50476136 that there is a very strong public interest in the BBC being able to enforce the television licensing system and in not disclosing information which could impede the deterrent effect.
