Dear D,

I noticed when Lord Soley copied me in on the email sent you yesterday, that the link somehow had got corrupted (and led to a “Page Not Found”).

Here is corrected link which takes you to “Visiting the House of Lords” page:

Best wishes,

Hi D

The second reading of the Bill will now be on Friday 24th November – sometime after 11am.

You may wish to inform interested parties who can of course, attend the debate as members of the public. It will be in the main chamber of the House and details for this can be found here:

Hi C
We thought the meeting was useful too. I have looked over the notes and think they covered the main points of the discussion.

Minor points:

- data collection should be requested by DfE – basic stuff like numbers but also which schools children are coming out of. Gender/SEN/ FSM etc
- Concerns that EHE is driven by schools and not always parents.

AEHEP happy to act as meeting coordination function – look forward to hearing from you

Best wishes
D.

Many thanks for your help and offer to help as from now. I thought it was a very positive meeting.
The attached brief notes were taken by A I could send them to all who attended but I am not sure how helpful or necessary that would be. Also, let me know if there is any vital point not included.
