Spoke with Martin Quine EA

- He advised he has spoken with Debbie Graham the permitting lead at EA, he has confirmed with her that the DCWW submission is purely a variation (no change to volume, flows et) She agrees but they have agreed at a higher level all variations will be advertised because it is a contentious catchment, hence the advert runs until 17th August, all responses need to be considered before approval so likely to be a few weeks.
- This will impact on the issuing of an RPS the filling of the wetlands from the water treatment works as the variation will not have been granted. Therefore his proposal is to issue a LEP to DCWW as an interim approach. He has asked a colleague to draft this Mon/Tues, arranged for enforcement input, tied in legal and then it will need to go to the EA's internal review panel, so a number of hurdles to jump, he is also on leave next week but has got it all teed up to progress in his absence so that when he returns on the 1st he can progress it to sign off on the 5th.
- His view is that worst case scenario the wetland could be filled if the LEP is in place for DCWW and the then the flow redirected if required (based upon the assumption that an RPS is imminent and it will take a month to fill).

- He has also said that Debbie Graham will approach [REDACTED] who is DCWW side of permitting to check they are content with this approach (he implied this is best done between EA and DCWW).
- The RPS would then follow with same checks and balances and will be progressed by [REDACTED].
- He is due to speak to his internal team next Monday (01/08) for an update and will contact us following on from that.

Whilst there is still a lot in the balance he sounded like he was determined to make it happen!

Think that covers all
