Support your disabled LGBT employees this Disability History Month

18 November marked the start of Disability History Month, running until 18 December. Marking the occasion is an essential way to show your staff that you are committed to tackling ableism, and celebrate the identities of disabled employees, including disabled LGBT employees.

For the occasion, we'll be releasing a series of content focused around ways to support disabled LGBT people everywhere. Our first article is live now.

Help us shape a more LGBT-inclusive voluntary sector

We are embarking on an exciting project to explore how we can offer new guidance for volunteer recruitment and management. If your organisation recruits volunteers, we would really appreciate you filling in this survey. This will help us build an accurate picture of the type of support we should be providing.

Thank you again for your ongoing support. With your help, we'll continue to work towards a world where every single lesbian, gay, bi and trans person is accepted for who they are, wherever they are.

Very best wishes,

Assistant Director of Workplace
