Dear Ms Wang,

I write in reply to your email of 16 July requesting the above information.

The information you have requested is in the attached spreadsheet. Please note that we have taken the following measures to reduce the risk of individuals being identified:

1. We have aggregated the data over the time period;
2. We have redacted information where the number of applicants was 2 or smaller; and
3. We have grouped together the data in the case of certain countries whose applicants were fewer than 3 in number.

In taking these measures, we are applying the exemption in section 40(2) of the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). Section 40(2) provides an exemption from disclosure for information that is the personal data of an individual other than the requester, where disclosure would breach any of the data protection principles in Article 5 of the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). We consider that disclosure of the full information requested would breach the first data protection principle, which requires that personal data is processed fairly and lawfully. Disclosure would be unfair to the individuals concerned, as it would be contrary to their reasonable and legitimate expectations. Providing the information in the requested format could allow others with access to additional information to identify individual applicants and infer new information about the success of individual applications. These applicants would not reasonably expect this information to be made public under the FOIA without their consent. Please note that a disclosure of information under FOIA is presumed to be a disclosure to the world at large, and not just a disclosure to the individual making the request.

For the disclosure of personal data to be lawful, it must have a lawful basis under Article 6 of the GDPR. There are six possible lawful bases in Article 6; we do not consider that any of them would be satisfied in respect of the disclosure.

The exemption in section 40(2) is an absolute exemption and is not subject to the public interest test provided for in section 2(2)(b) of the FOIA. To the extent that the public interest is relevant in this case, the University has taken it into account.
