In response to the matter raised concerning Maesteg School and the PFI schemes in Edinburgh please find below Balfour Beatty's official statement.

We are aware of recent media reports highlighting potential structural defects on a number of schools in the Edinburgh area which, for the avoidance of doubt, were not constructed by Balfour Beatty.

In relation to the schools that Balfour Beatty have constructed for Bridgend Borough Council and particularly in respect of design of these schools, a number of design consultants were engaged, working collaboratively across the projects, to ensure a common and consistent detailing across the school estate.

We are satisfied that each school was certified as being designed and constructed in compliance with the Contract requirements, and therefore posed no risk to the health and safety of the building users.

As a responsible contractor we will continue to monitor the developing situation across the country, including both Bridgend and Edinburgh."

Kind regards,

[REDACTED]
