

FOI Ref 201/2011

Request

As the Magna Carta 1215 forms the founding principles of the British Constitution and the constitutions of most the great western civilisation democracy.

The Administration of Justice Department (AoJ) has not right to ignore what is now firmly settled Constitutional law.

Therefore I wish to know under what legal precedent Dyfed Powys Police does not consider Article 38 Magna Carta 1215 in day-to-day procedures?

Also on what binding legal authority does Dyfed Powys Police base their processes solely upon statute legislation which has been passed through Parliament.

Director of Public Prosecutions as you right state exists for guidance, but this is not definitive only when applied to clandestine closed shop procedures!

Response

I refer you to the previous response provided under reference number 150/2011.
